Conditions of sale.

1. The Divisional Forest Officer is not bound to accept the highest or any offer for any lot. The sale of any lot, the value of which exceeds Rs. 2,000, shall not be complete until confirmed by the Conservator of Forests.

2. Successful bidders shall immediately deposit as earnest money 1/10th of the total bid in currency notes, which will be returned if the sale is not confirmed, and will be retained as security deposit if the same is confirmed.

3. Purchasers will be required to sign agreements in printed forms for outright sales. Copy of this form may be seen at the Divisional Forest Office, Cox's Bazar or Chittagong, and at the Range Offices.

4. The following are among the conditions of the agreements for all lots of the sale :—

(1) Felling and extraction to be completed by 30th April 1932.

(2) The purchase money to be paid in four instalments as follows :—

	Per cent.	Per cent.
1st instalment, 1st November 1931	10	100
2nd instalment, 1st December 1931	40
3rd instalment, 1st January 1932	40
4th instalment, 1st February 1932	10

5. Failure to sign the agreement within one month of confirmation of sale will render the purchasers liable to forfeiture of the security deposit.

The lot or lots so affected shall be resold by public auction or otherwise as the Divisional Forest Officer may think fit, and the defaulting purchaser shall be liable to make good any shortage on such resale.

6. If a tree shown as "sound" in the sale notice is found on felling to be "unsound" the Divisional Forest Officer may at his discretion order a refund of a proportionate amount on the unsound portion of the tree.

7. "D" class poles used for saw-benches will not be charged for unless removed. They must, however, be marked by a Forest Officer before felling and if removed will be charged for at schedule rates.

Divisional Forest Officer, Cox's Bazar Division.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 1890L.—26th June 1931.—The following report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Village Self-Government (Amendment) Bill, 1931, by Rai Keshab Chandra Banerji Bahadur, M.L.C., with the Bill as amended by the Committee, is hereby published for general information:—

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE BENGAL VILLAGE SELF-GOVERNMENT (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1931.

(By Rai Keshab Chandra Banerji Bahadur, M. L. C.)

We, the members of the Select Committee of the Bengal Legislative Council, to which the Bengal Village Self-Government (Amendment) Bill, 1931, by Rai Keshab Chandra Banerji Bahadur, was referred by a motion carried in the Bengal Legislative Council on the 16th February, 1931, have the honour to submit this our report with a copy of the Bill, as amended by us annexed. All matter omitted by the Select Committee has been printed in italics and enclosed in square brackets, and all new matter inserted has been underlined.

1. The Bill was published in English in the Calcutta Gazette on the 12th March, 1931.

2. We consider that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication.

3. The principal changes made in the Bill are detailed below :—

Clauses 2 and 5.—We have inserted in the new section 9A the provisions empowering the Union Board to appoint a substitute for a President or Vice-President to whom leave has been granted. This alteration has rendered clause 5 unnecessary and we have accordingly omitted clause 5.

Clauses 3 and 4.—We consider the amendments herein proposed of doubtful expediency. We consider that the provisions in the Act are sufficient safeguard. These clauses have accordingly been omitted.

Clause 6.—We have considered it advisable to add to the proposed new clause (4a) specific mention of the power to employ the staff necessary for carrying out the new powers of the Union Board. This has rendered advisable a consequential amendment of clause (5) of section 26 of the Act to insert similar words therein.

Clause 7.—We have omitted the first portion of this clause because the majority of the Committee were of opinion that the time was not yet ripe to leave unfettered discretion to Union Boards as to the system of medicine to be adopted in treatment given in dispensaries. We have retained as much of the clause as relates to empowering Union Boards to make grants to dispensaries.

Clause 8.—We have inserted herein the words " in the same district " which had been omitted in the Bill by the mover through oversight.

Clause 9 has been omitted by the Committee which considers that the provisions of the Act in this respect are better left unchanged.

Clause 10 has been revised in form in order to include a power to make rules as to the constitution of joint committees.

Clause 11.—The Committee considered that the powers given in the Bill were too wide and too vague to be given to Union Boards. They have accordingly limited the subjects on which by-laws may be made, and have guarded against conflict between such by-laws and those made by District Boards.

Minute of dissent by Rai Keshab Chandra Banerji Bahadur, M. L. C.

I sign the report subject to the following minute of dissent :—

1. I am of opinion that the amendment of section 12 as originally proposed in the Bill should stand. The reason is this. Candidates are sometimes returned unopposed when the nomination papers of the other candidates are rejected owing to technical defects. Such a member, though convicted of a non-bailable offence only a short time ago, is irremovable under the existing law. The electors, with the exception of a very few, had no opportunity of expressing their confidence or otherwise in him, yet he is, under the law, their accredited representative. The electors often do not know in detail the antecedents of the candidates, more specially of those who after spending the best part of their lives abroad return to their native villages and devote their time to the service of the village people. If such a man had a previous conviction, this is likely to be found out when it is too late. There ought to be proper provision in the Act to deal with such cases, although occasions for the exercise of this extraordinary power may not arise frequently.

2. I do not agree that the time is not yet ripe to allow the Union Boards to adopt a system of medicine in their dispensaries other than allopathic. I am certainly not in favour of an " unfettered " discretion being given to them. The discretion is, indeed, fettered in so far as the sanction of the District Board is concerned. I really do not see any point in the invidious distinction sought to be maintained for Union Board dispensaries in regard to a particular system of treatment. If the allopathic system is to be followed, the sanction of the District Board is sufficient but if any other system is to be followed, Local Government's sanction must be obtained. Why this anomally ? If the District Board is competent to decide whether it should establish an allopathic or homeopathic or any other type of dispensary, why should it be considered incompetent to decide the very same question with regard to a dispensary to be maintained by a Union Board ? The Local Government, so far as I am aware, has not refused sanction to the opening of a single homeopathic dispensary by a Union Board. What is then the point in making this distinction. viz., that Government sanction must be obtained in such cases ?

3. The next and the most important point where I differ from the majority report is about the amendment of sections 58 and 59. There is, indeed, the concurrent jurisdiction of the District Magistrate. The Board's jurisdiction may very seldom, if ever, be exercised with any appreciable advantage. Meetings are not, as a rule, held more than once in a month. In the circumstances, how can the Board be expected to take immediate steps to prevent a breach of the peace which is considered imminent. This power is to be exercised only in cases of emergency. I do not think that the emergency powers have been given to the District Board to be exercised long after the emergency has arisen.

I maintain, therefore, that either the Chairman must be empowered to take immediate action subject to the Board's approval or the District Board's jurisdiction in this matter should be altogether done away with leaving the District Magistrate the sole authority in such cases.

The jurisdiction of the Chairman will be temporary. He can do no harm even if he has a mind to do it. He will only issue a temporary injunction and place the facts of the case before the Board for approval or otherwise at the earliest opportunity. This authority to issue a temporary injunction is nothing compared to the final authority vested in him under section 27 of the Act. If he can exercise with sufficient discretion his executive powers in one case, I fail to see why he cannot be entrusted with the small power of suspending only temporarily an act or a resolution of a Union Board in cases of emergency alone while there are the District Board and the Commissioner to scrutinise the Chairman's action and to confirm, modify or rescind his orders.

2. We consider that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication.

3. The principal changes made in the Bill with the reasons therefor are set out hereafter.

Clause 1A.—These definitions are rendered necessary by the introduction for the first time into the Act of the two terms here defined. The definitions are those contained in the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923.

Clause 2.—The substance of the clause has been retained but it has been expressed in the form of a proviso to be added to section 220 of the Act in order to avoid the necessity of amending the reference in section 220 to "the next succeeding section."

Clause 3.—The provisions which clause 5 of the Bill sought to apply to work of the nature referred to in new section 224-1A have been applied by means of a new section 224-2A.

Clause 4.—A consequential amendment to clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 241 has been introduced. The proposed new proviso has been omitted by the Committee, the members being of opinion that it is advisable to retain the safeguard contained in sub-section (4) of section 241 of the Act. We have also here given to the Commissioners the power which the framer of the Bill sought to give them by sub-clause (iii) of the amendment contained in clause 7 of the Bill.

Clause 5.—This clause has been deleted. The Committee was opposed to the idea of empowering the Commissioners to shoulder the expenses of work of the nature referred to in section 332 of the Act. The other provisions of the clause are already provided for by the addition to clause 3 above referred to.

Clause 7.—The Committee agreed to omit the words "construction and maintenance" from sub-clause (i) of proposed clause (c) since the Act already makes adequate provision elsewhere for the regulation of these matters. The effect of the clause as amended by this omission is obtained more suitably by the redraft.

The Committee considered that the power to levy fees for privy connections should be more specifically provided for. We have accordingly deleted sub-clause (iii) and provided specifically in clause 4 that the Commissioners shall have this power.

Minute of dissent by Rai Keshab Chandra Banerji Bahadur, M. L. C.

In respect of applications for sanction to the construction of a privy, urinal or drain only, legal ingenuity may be exercised on the question whether a privy, drain or urinal, by itself, comes within the meaning of a house as defined in sub-clause (4) of section 6 of the Act, and the rules under section 241 may be urged as inapplicable. A more plausible objection may be raised in cases coming within the perview of section 224 of the Act, where substantial structural alterations in existing privies may have to be enforced for sanitary reasons. In these two series of cases it will be convenient for municipalities to turn to section 350 (c) and by-laws framed thereunder, as suggested in the Model Rules in Sanitary Board's circular letter Nos. 53-55, dated 27th January, 1904. Risks of legal quibbling will be avoided in these cases if after the word " management " in section 350 (c) the word " construction " or the words " including construction " be added. It is because these difficulties actually cropped up during the 10 years it fell to my lot to administer the sanitary sections of the Bengal Municipal Act in a mufassal municipality that I consider the change necessary.

THE BENGAL MUNICIPAL (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1931 ;

Rules for the guidance of private candidates for the Matriculation Examination of 1932.

The following rules for the guidance of private candidates for the Matriculation Examination are published for general information

2. Private students are those who have not attended any recognised or unrecognised school for at least one year previous to the examination. The term "private students" includes bona-fide school-masters.

3. Private students must appear at the Test Examination of one of the following institutions on the dates mentioned below:—

Comilla Zilla School, Noakhali R. K. Zilla School, Chittagong Collegiate School and Ranganati High English School.

Date of examination—7th, 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th December 1931.

Female candidates are not required to undergo any Test Examination.

Each private student will pay a fee of Rs. 5 to the head of the institution in which he appears for the Test Examination. No private student will be admitted to the Test Examination unless he is accompanied for the purpose of identification by some person known to the headmaster of the institution in which he appears.

4. Application for permission to appear at the Test Examination must be sent in time so as to reach this office not later than the 15th November 1931. The information to be given and the documents to be appended, in original, are the following:—

MARINE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 29Mne.—The 11th July 1931.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 29 of the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1917 (1 of 1917), and with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, the Governor in Council is pleased to make the following rules relating to the grant of certificates of competency to engineers and engine-drivers of inland steam and motor-vessels, in supersession of notification No. 30 Marine, dated the 25th February 1918.

E. N. BLANDY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Rules relating to the Examination of Engineers and Engine-drivers of inland steam and motor-vessels.

1. Certificates of competency to be granted to persons who pass requisite examinations.—Certificates of competency will be granted to those persons who pass the requisite examinations and otherwise comply with the requisite conditions. For this purpose examiners have been appointed and arrangements have been made for holding the examinations periodically at the Ports of Calcutta and Chittagong, and at Goalundo in the Faridpur district.

2. Examinations to be continued till all the candidates are examined.—The examinations will commence early in the forenoon, and will be continued until all the candidates whose names appear upon the list of the Principal Officer, Mercantile Marine Department, Calcutta district, Calcutta, or Nautical Surveyor, Chittagong, or of the Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo, on the day of examination are examined.

3. Application how to be made.—Candidates for examination must make their applications in form Exn. 1, which must be filled in at the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or at the Subdivisional Office, Goalundo.

Candidates unable to write English must apply at the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or at the Subdivisional Office, Goalundo, for a copy of form Exn. 1, and the same must be filled in before the Principal Officer, Mercantile Marine Department, Calcutta district, Calcutta, or Nautical Surveyor, Chittagong, or Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo, before submission at the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or at the Subdivisional Office, Goalundo.

The form Exn. 1, properly filled in, together with the candidate's testimonials, must be lodged with the Principal Officer, Mercantile Marine Department, Calcutta district, Calcutta, or Nautical Surveyor, Chittagong, or Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo, not later than three days before the day of examination.

4. Testimonials required.—Applicants will be required to produce, in addition to the usual forms of discharge, satisfactory testimonials as to sobriety, experience, ability, and general good conduct for at least the last 12 months' service on boardship preceding the date of application to be examined, unless the Government after having investigated the matter, should see fit to reduce the time.

An applicant already possessed of a certificate and wishing to appear for one of a higher grade must produce his certificate and all the discharges and testimonials he submitted when he applied for examination in the lower grade as well as the discharges and testimonials necessary for the higher grade certificate. Should references of doubtful authenticity be submitted by candidates for examination, the examining officer may require proof from the candidate of their genuineness, or an affidavit made to that effect.

If applicants have served on shore immediately preceding their application, certificates of sobriety must be produced from their employers, or from a respectable householder if unemployed. No candidate will be allowed to be examined unless he has served on boardship six months within the last three years preceding the date of his application to be examined.

5. As such testimonials and discharges may have to be verified before the candidates can be examined, it is desirable that these should be handed over, together with the form Exn. 1, as early as possible.

6. Testimonials of Foreigners.—The testimonials of service of Foreigners and of British seamen serving in foreign vessels, which cannot be verified in the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Sub-divisional Office, Goalundo, must be confirmed either by the Consul of the country to which the ship in which the candidate served belonged, or by some other recognized official authority of that country, or by the testimony of some credible person on the spot, having personal knowledge of the facts required to be established. The production, however, of such proofs will not of necessity be deemed sufficient. Each case must be decided on its own merits; and if the sufficiency of the proofs given appears to be at all doubtful, the point must be referred to the Government.

7. Certificate as to age.—Should any doubt exist as to the age of a candidate, he will be required to produce a certificate of birth or baptism.

8. Foreigners to know English.—Foreigners must prove to the satisfaction of the examiners that they can speak and write the English language sufficiently well to perform the duties required of them on board a British vessel.

9. Testimonials of service must ordinarily be based on their employers' office records.

Services claimed which cannot be "verified from the employers" office records must be authenticated by affidavits of men under whom such services have been performed as well as by an affidavit of the candidate himself.

Testimonials of service from European engineers will be accepted.

10. Candidates will be required to account for any gaps in their services with documentary evidence.

He must also be able to show that he understands the mechanism of the starting and reversing arrangements, and is competent to deal with defects therein.

37. He must understand how to make good the results of ordinary wear and tear to the machinery, how to test the fairness of shafting, etc., how to correct defects from accident, delay, etc., and how a temporary or permanent repair could be effected in case of derangement or total break-down.

38. He must understand the construction of the pressure gauge, barometer, thermometer, and other instruments used in the engine-room and the principles on which they work.

39. He must understand the construction and working of centrifugal bucket, and plunger pumps, and the principles on which they act.

first-class certificate of competency for sea-going steamships granted or recognised as valid under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894. He must also satisfy the examiners that he is fully conversant with internal combustion engines and be able to show both in writing and in viva voce examination that he has satisfactory knowledge of the subjects covered by rules 32 to 37 and 42 to 45 of these rules; or

He must also satisfy the examiners that he is fully conversant with internal combustion engines and be able to show both in writing and in viva voce examination that he has satisfactory knowledge of the subjects covered by rules 32 to 37 and 42 to 45 of these rules.

48. Engineers in possession of ordinary certificates of competency as engineers granted under the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1917, may be examined for motor endorsement of their certificates: provided that they have served for not less than 12 months as assistant engineer on regular watch on the main engines of a sea-going ship propelled by internal combustion engines of not less than 565 brake horse-power or 18 months on a similar inland-vessel whilst holding a certificate as engineer.

General Rules as to Examinations.

ENGINEERS.

49. Candidate not to take books, etc., into examination room.—All books necessary for the use of candidates under examination will be provided, and applicants will not be permitted to take into the examination room any book, paper, document, or memoranda of any description whatever; and, subject to the provisions referred to hereafter, they will also not be allowed to work out their problems on a slate or on waste paper.

50. Candidates will be allowed in the time allotted to cancel any part of their work, and, when required, additional papers will be supplied by the examiners. These additional sheets must be attached to, and form part of, the examination papers.

51. Punishment for breaking rules.—In the event of any candidate being discovered copying from another, or affording any assistance or giving any information to another, or communicating in any way with another during the time of examination, he will be regarded as having failed in his examination, and will be turned back for three months, in the same manner as if he had failed in the practical part of the examination; and no part of the fees he may have paid for examination will be returned to him.

52. Leaving examination room.—If a candidate leaves the room before answering any question which has been given to him, he cannot afterwards be permitted to answer it, but the examiners may substitute other data or another question.

53. (a) Questions and answers.—The examination of candidates for certificates of competency as engineers consists of four parts: Arithmetic, Drawing, Elementary questions and viva voce. When the number of marks obtained in arithmetic amounts to 28, that is, two-thirds of the maximum, the candidate passes in arithmetic.

(b) All applicants presenting themselves for examination for certificates of competency as engineers will be required to give written answers to ten questions selected from the list of elementary questions shown in Appendix B. These questions are intended to furnish a record to some extent of the candidate's knowledge at the time of his examination, and also to induce the candidates to pay more attention to their handwriting and spelling.

54. The form, Appendix A, on which these answers will be written, contains also some questions as to the experience of the applicant, to be answered by him in writing.

55. Examiners may add to their viva voce questions on the practical management of steam-engines and boilers any of those contained in Appendix B.

56. If at the expiration of the time allowed the candidate has worked out correctly the whole of the questions set to him, and given satisfactory answers in the viva voce examination, he will be declared to have passed.

57. If at the expiration of the time allowed he has not worked out the whole of the questions set to him, but if the result of the viva voce examination, taken in connection with the answers to such of the questions as he has worked out, is sufficient to satisfy the examiners that the applicant is competent to take charge of engines, he will be declared to have passed.

58. In other cases he will be declared to have failed.

59. A report of the examination, and the examination papers will be forwarded to the Government on the prescribed form.

60. Notification of having passed will be given to successful candidates.—If the candidate passes, he will receive a formal note to that effect upon which the Government will issue the certificate to the candidate, whose testimonials, etc., will be returned at the same time.

FEES.

61. Fees to be paid by applicants for examination.—Candidates for examination, in making their application on form Exn. 1, will be required to pay the examination fees before any step is taken, whether by inquiring into their services or testing their qualifications, etc. No part of the fee will under any circumstances be returned to them; but should it be found that their services is not sufficient to entitle them to be examined, or that their testimonials are unsatisfactory, they will be allowed to present themselves for examination without paying any further fee, when they have fulfilled the requisite service, or are able to produce satisfactory testimonials, as the case may be.

62. The fee for examination must be paid to the Principal Officer, Mercantile Marine Department, Calcutta, or Nautical Surveyor, Chittagong, or Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo. In any case in which a candidate offers money to any other officer, and in any place but in the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Office, Goalundo, the candidate so offering money will be regarded as having committed an act of misconduct, and will be rejected and not allowed to be examined for 12 months.

63. If a candidate fails in his examinations, no part of the fee he has paid will be returned to him.

64. The fees are as follows:—

	Rs.
Second-class engine-drivers	4
First-class ditto	10
Engineers	12

FAILURE.

65. If the applicant fails in the viva voce or practical part of the examination, he may not present himself for re-examination until he can produce proofs of three months' further service afloat. If he fails in arithmetic or drawing only, he may come up again at any time. Engine-drivers may be examined de novo after six months' active service as serang or principal tindal or second driver if the past examination showed that they might reasonably be expected to qualify.

GENERAL.

66. Certificates of competency as engineers and first and second-class engine-drivers shall be made out and issued in the forms hereunto annexed.

67. Every certificate of competency shall be made in duplicate, and one copy shall be delivered to the person entitled to the certificate and the other shall be kept and recovered by the Principal Officer, Mercantile Marine Department, Calcutta, or Nautical Surveyor, Chittagong, or the Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo.

[See Rule 28 (d).]

Reading the Water-Gauges.

(Engineers and Engine-drivers.)

Notwithstanding that reading of the water-gauge is made a special feature in the examination of Engineers, many boiler casualties result from the Engineer of the watch either not understanding the construction of the water-gauge fittings or not satisfying himself by actual trial that the cocks, pipes, etc., are clear.

In one case, two furnace crowns came down in a steamer that was just starting on a voyage. The Engineers were satisfied that there was plenty of water in the boiler because the water-gauge showed full glass, and they called the attention of the Surveyor to this fact as being conclusive evidence that the casualty could not have resulted from shortness of water. On examination of the fittings, however, it was found that the cock between the boiler and the steam pipe leading to the gauge was shut, having been carelessly left in that position on the previous day when the mountings were overhauled for survey. Directly the cock was opened the water disappeared from the gauge-glass, and the Second Engineer admitted that he had blown down the boiler in order to lower the water level, as the glass was full.

Many steamers have had their furnaces brought down at sea in a similar manner to the above through what the Engineers of the watch have called "false water in the glass," and which on examination has been found to result from the top communication being choked.

These casualties resulted from what, to say the least, was bad management, not false water.

Unless a candidate under examination is able to prove that he understands how to verify the indications of the water-gauge, he should not be passed in practical knowledge and, as failure in practical knowledge involves the candidate going to sea for another three months before being eligible for re-examination, the Examiner should explain to such candidate his error, after failing him, in order to prevent further casualties resulting from his want of knowledge on this subject.

The sketches, Figures 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, Plate I, represent the usual methods of attaching water-gauge mountings to marine boilers. The important features in each gauge and the method of verifying its indications are dealt with separately in the following remarks:—

Plate 1

In this case the water-gauge cocks are attached direct to the boiler, and the accuracy of the gauge when the boiler is under steam can be tested as follows:—

First.—Let B remain open, then close cock D and open cock E, and if steam issues it proves that cock B and the passage through the top fitting and gauge-glass are clear. If no steam or water issues, either cock B or the passage through the top fitting and gauge-glass is chocked and the gauge cannot act properly until the obstruction is removed.

Second.—Close cock B and open D and E, and if water issues, cock D is clear. If no water or steam issues, either cock D or the passage from the boiler through the lower fitting is chocked and must be cleared before the gauge can act properly.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 2 ONLY.

In this case the gauge cocks are attached to a bent pipe of comparatively large diameter (at least 3 inches in the bore), the upper end of which communicates with the steam space, and the lower end with the water space of the boiler. Owing to the bore of the pipe being large it is not liable to become choked or stopped under the ordinary conditions of working. The water-gauge is, therefore, in practically the same condition as if it were attached direct to the boiler, as in Figure 1. This gauge, when at work, is tested in precisely the same manner as the one shown in Figure 1.

Screw plugs are inserted at P.P. and Q.Q., by the removal of which the apertures in the pipe can be cleared, if necessary, by the insertion of a wire or rod when steam is down.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 3 ONLY.

In this gauge there is an open communication from A to C through the column Y, and in order to "blow through the glass" it is only necessary to shut cocks D and B alternately keeping E open. But to "blow through the water-gauge," including the pipes H and I, it is necessary, after blowing through the glass as described above, to shut A and C alternately, at the same time keeping B, D and E open for such time as will ensure the complete discharge of the contents of the gauge and its connections. When B, D and C are clear and A choked the steam lodging in the glass and in the pipe I leading from column Y to A becomes condensed and the water flowing through C to take its place rises in column Y and in the glass to a level above that of the water in the boiler. In other words, the gauge shows a false level. If now E be opened and water is blown out, then on E being again closed the water in the gauge will rise higher than before and be still further misleading. On the other hand, when B, D and A are clear and C choked, the water, if any, in the glass is trapped and no longer rises and falls with the water in the boiler or with the motion of the vessel; it, however, slowly rises in the glass owing to the condensation of the steam in the upper part of the gauge until such time as E is opened when the whole of the water in the glass is blown out, and on E being closed the glass does not show any water notwithstanding that the water in the boiler may be at the proper level. When the test cocks T T T are attached to column Y, as shown in Figure 3, they cease to be reliable when either cock A or C or the pipe in connection therewith is choked, or nearly choked.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 4 ONLY.

Sometimes the water-gauge fittings are arranged as shown in Figures 4 and 5, with no passage up the column, the central portion (N) of the column, being simply a pillar or connecting piece of any convenient section between the upper and lower portions to which the cocks B and D are attached.

By this arrangement double communications are obviated and there is no need for what is known as "double shut off" in testing the accuracy of the gauge. When, however, the gauges are constructed in this manner the cocks B and D are unreliable as test cocks in the event of there being no glass in the gauge. This feature should be carefully noted. Moreover, when in working condition the reduction of pressure in the glass which arises when E is opened causes the water in pipe H to rise above its normal level. This objectionable feature should also be noted.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 5 ONLY.

Sometimes there is a bend, L, in the steam pipe, I, leading from cock A to cock B. This has occasionally escaped observation when new boilers have been fitted on board ship. In most cases this bend arises from the pipe being led in an abnormal direction to escape other pipes, beams or fittings near the smoke box. With such a bend the condensed steam collects in the pipe and falls to the bottom of the bend, and in time it completely fills the pipe from J to K. The steam from K down to the level of the water in the glass is thereby trapped and, as condensation proceeds, leads to a reduction of pressure in the pipe below that of the boiler and an equivalent rise of the water in the bend and also in the gauge glass. When the vessel is quiescent the water in the gauge glass increases in height until cock E is opened or until the pressure in the boiler is so much in excess of that in the lower part of pipe I, as to cause the water in the bend to be blown into the gauge glass. In either case instantaneous change to water level in the glass ensues.

In the ordinary course of working the phenomenon described above is more or less modified by the presence of air in the upper part of the gauge and by the rise and fall of the water in the boiler and gauge glass arising from the rolling or pitching motions of the vessel.

Other special points to be noted.

When the cocks A and C are omitted, as in Figure 2, it is owing to the bore of the stand pipe being sufficiently large to enable it to be regarded as part of the boiler. Such pipes require, however, to be examined and cleared at intervals by passing a rod through the holes provided for the purpose at P.P. and Q.Q.

Cocks at A and C are not necessary for the testing of gauges arranged as shown in Figures 4 and 5. Examiners ought, however, to make sure that candidates are aware of the impossibility of testing the reliability of the indications of water-gauges arranged as in Figure 3 when the cocks A and C are absent and of the effect which the choking of cock A or C, or pipe H or I has on the indications of the test cocks T T T attached to column Y.

Probably more than half the steamers afloat are fitted with water-gauges as shown in Figures 3 and 4, and it is therefore specially important that Engineer candidates should thoroughly understand their construction, the principle on which they act, and the steps which must be taken to keep them in an efficient condition.

When fitting a gauge glass into its place it is specially important that it should not be placed so high as to prevent a clearing rod being inserted at G, Figures 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5. This defect, especially if it occurs in a water-gauge attached to a boiler subject to priming, permits a rapid accumulation of scum around the top of the glass and results in the choking of the orifice leading from cock B to the gauge glass in each of the figures.

When a gauge glass is too short or is placed either too high or too low in the fittings, it is also liable to become choked by the packing material being forced over its ends by the glands whilst being screwed up.

The use of unsuitable or insecure internal pipes in connection either with the ordinary glass gauge cocks of the description shown in Figure 1, or with test cocks which are jointed to the boiler itself should also be carefully guarded against.

Boiler casualties have resulted from the cocks B and D having the parts wrongly placed as shown in Figure 6, Plate 2. In one case of that kind, the Engineer in testing the water-gauge omitted to see that the passages in the cocks B and D were clear when the handles were in their proper working position. This defect could easily have been discovered if proper attention had been paid to the condition of the cocks. A defect of this nature may be due to faulty construction originally, or to the handle of the cock having been overstrained, and the neck twisted, Whether the passages in the plugs are fair and clear can, however, be verified in a few minutes. As an illustration, the water cock D, Figure 6, Plate 2, can be verified by blowing through E with B shut and then moving the handle of D to one side until it is just closed, and then to the other side until it is again just closed; the proper working position of the handle is about equally distant from each of the above position. The other cocks can be verified in the same manner.

Another serious casualty occurred through the handle of the cock A, Figure 3, having been twisted from its original position relatively to the orifice of the cock, resulting in the cock being shut when apparently open.

When a water-gauge, that is clear in all its parts, has been thoroughly blown through, the water in the glass rises above the level at which it formerly stood, immediately the drain cock E is closed, but if left undisturbed for a time it gradually falls to its former position. The amount of rise which occurs on these occasions depends chiefly on the temperature of the contents of the boiler and on the length of the pipes by which column Y is connected top and bottom to the boiler, but in cases where the gauge is of the description illustrated in Figures 3, 4 and 5, it amounts in high pressure boilers to about 4 inches, while the time occupied by the water in returning to its former level ranges from 30 to 40 minutes. The cause of this rise is twofold, namely, (a) the displacement of the comparatively cold water in pipe H by hotter, and proportionately lighter, water from the boiler, and (b) a slight condensation of the steam and a corresponding fractional reduction of pressure in pipe I. The cause of the gradual subsidence of the water in the glass to its former level is also of a dual character, namely, (a) the cooling of the water in pipe H, and (b) the diminution in the condensation of steam in pipe I owing to the collection therein of air released from the steam condensed.

Plate 2.

These results will, however, be somewhat modified if the water in the boiler is of higher density than in pipe H, and this will nearly always be the case owing to the condensation of the steam in the glass and upper fittings of the water-gauge, causing the water in the lower part to be fresher than that in the boiler.

The Examiner should impress upon candidates the necessity for periodically blowing through the water-gauge on each boiler (no matter what the form may be) in a systematic and thorough manner, and, in cases where a boiler is fitted with two water-gauges, of keeping both in constant use; finally, he should further impress upon them the necessity for keeping the water-gauges well lighted, clean, and in all respects efficient.

Appendix D.

[See Rules 28 (a) and 28 (o).]

Examination in rough working drawing for an Engineer's Certificate of Competency.

1. The regulations in regard to the qualifications of a candidate for an Engineer's certificate of competency specify that—

He will be required to make an intelligible hand sketch, or a working drawing of some one or more of the principal parts of a steam-engine, and to mark in, without a copy, all the necessary dimensions in figures, so that the sketch or drawing could be worked from.

He must be able to state the general proportions borne by the principal parts of the machinery to each other.

2. In accordance with these clauses, a candidate for an Engineer's certificate is required to make a rough working drawing of the parts specified. An Engineer who has been some years in charge of marine engines and boilers ought to have familiarly in his mind the general construction of at least one set of engines and boilers, say, that set he was last with. Fine drawing is not expected, and in the proportions of the parts a wide margin will be allowed; absurd dimensions will be failure in practical knowledge.

3. The drawing must, however, be practically a working drawing, giving a sufficient number of views to show the parts fully—sections, plans, or elevations—just as the candidate would require to be supplied to him if he had to make the parts represented to the design of another person.

4. A clear hand sketch showing the construction completely, and fully dimensioned, will be accepted if the candidate prefers this alternative.

5. A portion only of the parts specified may be accepted in place of the whole, if that portion is sufficient to show that the candidate has a good practical idea of the construction of the parts, and a fair notion of their general proportions or dimensions.

6. Candidates are cautioned not to put on paper what they have not fully considered, and deliberately intend to be understood, as evidence of what they know about the construction of any part required.

7. The statements given in by a candidate may be in themselves, apparently, of little importance, but, as sample material from which the extent of the candidate's knowledge of engines and boilers is to be inferred, every detail which is glaringly inconsistent with a sound knowledge of the use of the part, or in which an essential consideration has evidently been overlooked, is an important element in the description which the candidate is giving of his own qualifications.

8. The candidate is advised not to begin more than he can clearly finish in the time allowed. An important object in this part of the examination is to ascertain whether the candidate can be trusted to mark all necessary dimensions upon a sketch or a drawing. The test of this is, practically, the making of the part from the sketch without having to supply additional dimensions, and without measuring the drawing. To prove this ability the candidate must fully dimension the parts shown in his sketch or drawing, notwithstanding that the parts may be correctly drawn to scale. A drawing is fully dimensioned when no part of it is left to the option of the party who is to work to the drawing.

9. To prevent misunderstanding, however, when the candidate has been led into showing more of the details than he has time fully to finish, he should name in the statement on the other side, the particular parts which he has fully dimensioned.

10. All dimensions should have lines and darts, to indicate distinctly the points between which the dimensions are given.

11. Beware of writing cross dimensions upon centre lines, or upon longitudinal dimension lines. This is not an order, but a recommendation.

12. The candidate is not expected to design anything; he has merely to sketch or draw something with which he is expected to be already familiar. At the same time he should call attention to any defect in the design of the article or apparatus. Omission to do so will imply want of practical knowledge.

13. Pencil in nothing after half-past 3; all the dimensions, the figures, and the darts must be inked in; employ the remaining time in examining the drawing and in inking in any figures which may have been before overlooked and in checking the dimension.

14. Make sure that you will have sufficient room on the drawing sheet to show all the necessary views. You can have another sheet of drawing paper if necessary. All the paper used must be forwarded with the drawing.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 26th June, 1931.

No. 44/31-C. & G.—The following Interim Report of the Delegates of India to the Eleventh Assembly of the League of Nations is published for general information:—

INTERIM REPORT OF THE INDIAN DELEGATION TO THE ELEVENTH (ORDINARY) SESSION OF THE ASSEMBLY OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS (1930).

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE W. WEDGWOOD BENN, D.S.O., D.F.C., M.P., HIS MAJESTY'S SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

SIR,

We beg to submit our Interim Report on the Eleventh (Ordinary) Session of the Assembly of the League of Nations, held at Geneva from the 10th September to 4th October, at which we had the honour to represent India.

2. This Report consists of a general survey of the main subjects dealt with during the Assembly and a description in greater detail of the subjects with which we ourselves were principally concerned and of our own activities. We shall follow the example of our predecessors by presenting at a later date a Final Report, which will cover completely the ground of the work of the Assembly this year and contain the text of the resolutions adopted by the Assembly, the texts of some of the more important reports and of the principal speeches made by members of the Delegation and other matter required for record.

Preliminary Remarks.

3. Numerically the Indian Delegation was the same as for some years past, consisting of three full and three substitute delegates. His Highness the Maharaja of Bikaner had been a delegate at the Assembly of 1924 and Sir Ewart Greaves at that of 1929. Sir Ewart Greaves was obliged to return to England after 10 days, and his place was taken by Sir Basanta Mullick, who had twice previously attended meetings of the Assembly. The rest of us had had no previous experience of meetings of the League of Nations.

Opening of the Eleventh Session.

4. The proceedings of the Assembly were opened on the 10th September by His Excellency M. Zumeta, First Delegate for Venezuela, acting as President of the Council. Fifty-two out of fifty-four States Members were represented in the Assembly, the absentees being the Argentine Republic and Honduras. His Excellency M. Titulesco, Delegate for Roumania and Roumanian Minister in London, was elected President of the Eleventh Assembly, and proved himself one of the best who had held office. The election of Vice-Presidents and the General and Agenda Committees proceeded in accordance with the usual routine.

The General Debate.

5. The year had been one of great activity on the part of the organs of the League, but there was no signal achievement to be placed to its credit; in fact, several important Conferences had had results which were either negative or disappointing. Notable, if partial, success had, it is true, attended the London Naval Conference, which was held outside the sphere of the League, but it had not been possible to hold a further meeting of the Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference. The political situation in Europe was certainly no better than in 1929, and the prospects of an improvement were diminished by the results of the German elections, which took place a few days after the opening of the Assembly. The representatives of nearly every country, particularly in Europe, were acutely conscious of the economic crisis. In these circumstances optimism would have been out of place. The serious character of the prevailing conditions caused the majority of the speakers to address themselves to the facts in a spirit of realism without excessive rhetoric.

M. Briand's Speech.

6. A subject which received much attention was the proposal for the creation of an organisation for the consideration of European co-operation. M. Briand had made it known at the Assembly of 1929 that he intended to prepare proposals of this nature. Since then he had issued a memorandum to the European Governments. Their observations on it had been considered by a Conference of European States immediately before the Assembly, and it had been decided that the proposed organisation should be created within the framework of the League. It was expounded at length, though hardly in detail, by M. Briand himself in the Assembly. Most of the speakers in the general debate referred to it; none questioned the need for closer co-operation, and there was general agreement that further discussion should take place with a view to converting the idea into a concrete proposition. But the spokesmen of some of the non-European States emphasised that if machinery for dealing with European problems were created within the framework of the League, the interests of the non-European members would have to be safeguarded. The Assembly passed a resolution which, after recognising in principle the need for closer European co-operation, and confirming the view that this should be effected within the framework of the League, invited the Governments of the European States, acting with the assistance of the League Secretariat as a Committee of the League, to carry the enquiry further with a view to presenting concrete proposals to the next Assembly. It was stated in the resolution that this enquiry might be conducted by the European States in conjunction with the non-European Members of the League and with States which are not Members of the League, and the President of the Assembly stated when the motion was adopted that it was understood that the meetings of the Committee for European Union should be open to all States Members, in order that those not immediately concerned might place before the Committee any observations which they might consider necessary. In pursuance of this resolution a formal meeting of the Committee of Enquiry for European Union was held on the 23rd September, when the future procedure was arranged and the date of the next meeting was fixed for January 1931.

Speech of His Highness the Maharaja of Bikaner.

7. His Highness the Maharaja of Bikaner addressed the Assembly on the 16th September. His Highness began by recalling his association with the Peace Conference and the fact that he shared with Sir Robert Borden, who had made the opening speech, the privilege of assisting at the birth of the League. He stood there as the symbol of the unity of India in her adherence to the League, representing both British India and the Indian States, which comprise about one-third of the area of India and one-fourth of her population. India, as much as other countries, was convinced that no array of difficulties, however great, must be allowed to discourage them from the pursuit of peace. It was only a few years ago that mankind still believed that glory was to be won through war, but the outlook of the civilised world was now altered. He, like General Hertzog, who had spoken earlier, was a soldier, and there were none who more deeply desired to serve the cause of peace than soldiers. Soldiers knew that there could be no effective security from war without a substantial and universal limitation of armaments; they also knew the difficulties, but these difficulties must be overcome. India had special problems on her frontiers, for which the machinery of the League afforded no protection, but she was ready to collaborate in all schemes of disarmament compatible with her security; the philosophy of India was an embodiment of the most complete and consistent code of pacificism in the world. India could not but be friendly to the underlying aims of the European co-operation which M. Briand had expounded. M. Briand had disclaimed all idea of organising Europe in a spirit of antagonism to the outside world; yet there might be a danger in these early years of the League that a plan for the closer union of Europe might give rise to misapprehension outside Europe as running counter to the basic principles of the Covenant that the League existed not for Europe, not for Asia, but for the world. Any impression that Europe was seeking to consolidate its industrial position to the detriment, however unintended, of less fortunate parts of the world might lead to consequences which no Member of the League could desire. It was, therefore, a happy instinct which had prompted M. Briand to give all Members of the League an opportunity to consider how far the machinery of the League could be adopted to the consideration of regional problems. International co-operation in the economic sphere should be as far as possible world-wide rather than sectional or regional. The depression of agriculture and the depression of industry were organically allied problems and embraced the whole world; it was for the technical organisations of the League to investigate the means whereby industry and agriculture alike could be safeguarded against the recurrence of depression. Sympathetic criticism was needed for progress, and service to the League must be rendered with a loyalty which was not blind but proceeded from clear-sighted courage.

Speeches of Mr. Graham and Mr. Henderson.

8. Two important speeches were made by the British Delegation, Mr. Graham spoke on the economic situation and Mr. Henderson dealt with political subjects.

9. Mr. Graham said that it had been hoped last year that with the Reparations Settlement a period of stability was being approached. This hope had been disappointed by the collapse of commodity prices, and no one could say that the fall of prices had yet reached bed-rock. He hoped that the machinery of the League would be able to make use of the research work on trade depressions which was being carried out in various countries, and so make some practical contribution towards safeguarding the world against recurrent distress. He went on to refer to the so-called Tariff Truce Conference of last spring. He announced the decision of the British Government to ratify the Convention for concerted economic action which was to provide the basis for further negotiations. These negotiations were to cover other economic restrictions besides those of tariffs, though he regarded tariff reduction as the most important aim. There was a great danger that the present depression might lead to increased tariffs, which, though they might produce some degree of temporary alleviation, would end by aggravating the situation. Tariffs and economic nationalism could not make any real contribution to the solution of the problem and it was necessary to sound the international note in economic relations.

10. Mr. Henderson said that closer co-operation between European nations, which all agreed was of vital importance for the peace of the world, must be carried out in full agreement with and on the authority of the League, and the machinery required should be League machinery without incurring the risks and difficulties which a system of new and independent institutions might involve. After referring to the fact that all members of the British Commonwealth of Nations had ratified the signature of the Optional Clause, he stated that only 17 Members of the League had not yet signed the Clause and only 11 others, who had signed it, had not yet ratified; this was an advance of great importance, and they might hope soon to see the acceptance of the Optional Clause practically universal. But the Optional Clause was only a first step, and Great Britain stood for the acceptance by all States of the principle that disputes of every kind, and not only those of a justicible nature, should be settled by pacific means. His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom had always been favourably disposed towards the principle of the General Act of 1928, but in a matter of such vital concern they desired to proceed in close accord with the other members of the British Commonwealth; it would be one of the chief tasks of the approaching Imperial Conference to consider what further contribution the British Commonwealth could make to the cause of disarmament and peace. The proposals to amend certain Articles of the Covenant in accordance with the Pact of Paris and the draft Treaty of Financial Assistance were both measures in the direction of security which Great Britain was prepared to support; but it was the profound belief of his Government that security and disarmament were closely interlocked, and the acceptance of these two measures by the British Government would be made dependent on the condition that disarmament ceased to be a mere phrase and became a reality. Security was impossible if competitive military preparations continued; of all security measures disarmament was the most important, and the obligation in Article 8 of the Covenant to accept a general reduction and limitation of armaments was no less sacred than any other obligation contained in the treaties of peace. It was two years since the Assembly had adopted a resolution which declared that the existing conditions of security were sufficient to allow of the conclusion of a first General Disarmament Convention, and yet in those two years no treaty had been made.

Other Speeches.

11. All the leading statesmen, including Dr. Curtius, the Foreign Minister for Germany, General Hertzog, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, and Sir Robert Borden, ex-Prime Minister of Canada, took part in the general debate. A point of special interest was that the delegate for Persia, His Excellency Hussein Alâ, stated that he had just received a telegram from Teheran informing him that Persia adhered to the Optional Clause. A speaker who, as much as any other, seemed to voice the prevailing dissatisfaction with existing conditions was Jonkheer F. Beelaerts van Blokland, the Foreign Minister for Holland. After an unsparing analysis of the failures of the year in international politics and in the activities of the League, he likened the progress of the League during the year to the progress of the new League building; the foundation stone had been laid at the last Assembly, but it still stood alone. He recognised, however, that the spectre of war was definitely fading away. He recalled Article 19 of the Covenant as to the reconsideration of treaties which have become inapplicable and the consideration of international conditions whose continuance might endanger the peace of the world, and he asked whether it would not be well to insert another clause providing for the reconsideration of a form of nationalism which has become inapplicable and the reconsideration of economic conceptions, the continuance of which might endanger the peace of the world.

Elections.

(A) Council.

12. The three temporary Members of the Council who retired this year after three years' tenure were Canada, Cuba, and Finland. China, which had been a Member from 1926 to 1928 and was not under the ordinary rule eligible as a candidate until 1931, presented a claim to be declared eligible for re-election at once, but failed by five votes to obtain the necessary two-thirds majority. At the subsequent election Guatemala, Norway and the Irish Free State were successful with 41, 38 and 36 votes respectively, Portugal being the highest unsuccessful candidate with 30 votes.

(B) Permanent Court of International Justice.

13. The second general election for the Court took place this year. There were 15 judges to be elected. To secure election each candidate has to obtain an absolute majority of votes both in the Assembly and the Council, voting separately and simultaneously. At the first ballot in the Assembly 14 candidates obtained absolute majorities. Four more ballots were necessary before a fifteenth candidate secured an absolute majority. The result of the ballots in the Assembly was then compared with that of the Council, and it was found that the two lists were coincident in respect of 14 names. These 14 candidates were therefore declared elected. These were:—

M. Adatci.
M. Altamira y Crevea.
M. Anzilotti.
M. de Bustamante y Sirven.
M. van Eysinga.
M. Fromageot.
M. Guerrero.
Sir Cecil Hurst.
Mr. F. B. Kellogg.
M. Negulesco.
Baron Rolin-Jaequemyns.
Count Rostworowski.
M. Schücking.
M. Wang Chung-Hui.

14. Five more ballots had to be taken before a candidate again obtained an absolute majority in the Assembly, and it was then found that the choice of the Council had fallen upon a different candidate. After an eleventh ballot in the Assembly it was found that the Assembly and the Council were in agreement in the choice of M. Urrutia, and he was accordingly elected to fill the fifteenth place.

15. After six more ballots in the Assembly, the Assembly and the Council agreed upon the choice of the following as deputy judges:—

M. Erich.
M. Novakovitch.
M. Redlich.
M. da Matta.

This procedure took up the greater part of a day. A point of interest is that the Latin-American States were successful in establishing their claim to the election of three among the 15 judges.

COMMITTEE I.—Legal and Constitutional Questions.

AMENDMENT OF THE COVENANT.

17 This matter was perhaps the most important and difficult of those discussed by the Eleventh Assembly. The British Delegation had proposed at the last Assembly that the Covenant should be amended so as to bring it into line with the Pact of Paris. In accordance with the decision of the Assembly, a Committee of Jurists had been convened, and submitted a report containing recommendations as to the amendments necessary and desirable for the purpose in view. These recommendations went somewhat beyond the mere assimilation of the Covenant to the principles of the Paris Pact, chiefly in the direction of providing a positive contribution to the measures in existence for the peaceful settlement of disputes. Also by increasing the obligations of the Covenant the amendments tended to increase the conditions which would constitute a violation of the Covenant, and thus to increase the liability for applying sanctions to Covenant breakers under Article 16.

18. The amendments were discussed by the First Committee and later by a Sub-Committee. Agreement was reached on certain points, and, in particular, it was agreed not to follow the Committee of Jurists in attempting to assimilate recommendations of the Council for the settlement of international disputes under Article 15 (6) to arbitral awards or judicial decisions. But serious difficulties arose in regard to the relation between Article 16, which provides for the application of sanctions, and the amendments of the preceding Articles. There were also difficulties in regard to the position of States Members which have not acceded to the Pact of Paris, in regard to the bearing upon the amended Articles of the interpretations placed upon the Pact of Paris by certain States at the time of signature or accession and in regard to the compatibility between the amended Articles and certain other treaties, such as the Treaty of Locarno. In view of these difficulties and of the fact that they were no longer dealing with the texts recommended by the Committee of Jurists on which the delegations had been instructed by their Governments, the Sub-Committee decided that the whole matter would have to be further considered by the Governments with a view to discussion at the next Assembly. This decision, although the subject of natural disappointment in certain quarters, was confirmed by the Assembly.

19. The delegations representing the British Commonwealth followed a uniform policy. It was not necessary for us to take any part in the discussions of the Committee. For this reason, and in view of the fact that no decision of substance was reached, we do not attempt to deal with the subject in any detail. For a proper understanding of it, nothing but a close study of the Report of the Committee of Jurists and of the Report of the First Committee of the Assembly would suffice.

Codification of International Law.

20. After several years' preparations the first Conference for the Codification of International Law was held at The Hague last spring. It attempted to deal with three subjects—Nationality, Territorial Waters and Responsibility of States for damage done in their territory to the person or property of foreigners. The results were meagre and the hopes founded upon the Conference were for the most part disappointed. To some extent failure was due to the fact that the preparations, long and elaborate though they were, had not been sufficient to enable Governments to realise the differences which separated them, or to appreciate the extent of the mutual accommodation which would be necessary for success; to some extent also failure was due to the fact that many delegates were more concerned to maintain and establish the existing national or sectional views than to arrive at international accord by adjustment and concession. It was obvious that the results of the Conference did not justify any extension of activity on the same lines, and the Conference itself had made recommendations for a more elaborate future procedure both in the stage in which subjects are considered by independent experts and in the subsequent consultation of Governments. But it was not only a question of procedure. Questions of principle—to what extent and in what fields codification might usefully be applied to the development of international law, or whether that development would be better left to other processes—were also in issue.

21. Various propositions were placed before the First Committee, some contemplating a limitation of the categories of international law in which codification should be attempted, some asking for the appointment of an expert committee to examine the whole question, and others suggesting that Governments should be given time to consider the subject between this and the next Assembly. Speakers differed as to the value which they attached to the results of the Hague Conference and to the process of codification. But all were agreed that no new departure on the old lines was advisable in the immediate future. The questions raised would have required for their solution much more time than was available in the congested state of the Committee's agenda. Before the debate had proceeded far the Committee took the sensible course of adopting a resolution which adjourned the whole question to the next session of the Assembly, and requested the Council to invite Members of the League and non-member States to communicate their observations on the suggestions which had been put forward with a view to their consideration at the next Assembly.

Organisation of the Permanent Court of International Justice.

22. As our predecessors reported, the Assembly of 1929 adopted certain amendments of the Statute of the Permanent Court with the object of (1) consolidating the position of the judges, and (2) placing the Court itself on a permanent and continuous basis These amendments provided, inter alia for abolishing the deputy judges and increasing the ordinary judges from 11 to 15, for adopting a system of fixed inclusive salaries for the judges, for introducing the principle of the Court being in permanent session except during vacation and for prohibiting judges from engaging in other occupations of a professional nature. It had been agreed by the Assembly of 1929 that the amendments might come into force in time for this year's election even though they had not been formally ratified by all the signatories, provided that no Government had any objection to effect being given in advance of formal ratification. Cuba, however, had given notice of objection to this procedure, and this objection was not withdrawn and could not be set aside.

23. The question how to deal with the resultant situation was the subject of much discussion in the First Committee. It was desired that the judges to be elected for the next period of the Court's existence should be subject to the conditions provided for in the amendments so far as was possible while the amendments themselves still awaited universal formal ratification. It was found that the desired changes could be introduced to a large extent under the existing Statute by resolutions of the Assembly and by alterations which it was hoped that the Court itself would make in its rules. We need not describe in detail the arrangements which the Assembly decided to make. The main points are (1) the number of judges has been increased from 11 to 15; the deputy judges have to remain until the Statute is amended, but it will probably not be necessary to call upon their services; (2) the fixed inclusive salary could not be introduced, but an approximation to it has been achieved by largely increasing the fixed portion of the judges' emoluments and diminishing the variable portion under the existing Statute; and consequential modifications have been made in the pension system. Other points relating to the sessions of the Court and the attendance of the judges remain to be regulated by the Court itself. It was on this basis that the election of judges was carried out.

COMMITTEE II.—Technical Organisations.

The Economic Organisation.

24. It has been well observed that if during the first decade of the League its political work was of dominating importance, it is the economic aspect of its work which is taking the pride of place in the present decade. The tendency towards this transition of interest has been accelerated by the great economic depression; and it is no matter of surprise that the discussions of the Assembly and of the Second Committee were largely concerned throughout the present Session with this all-absorbing topic. As the report of the Second Committee states, the economic discussions of the Session "have either dealt in general terms with the causes and various aspects of the depression in certain countries or throughout the world, or have been directed to the elucidation of various problems of commercial policy which the development of the depression renders more and more urgent."

(1) Study of the Economic Depression.

25. The Indian Delegation assumed the initiative in the Second Committee in pressing for a careful study of the causes and course of the depression and for an investigation of any remedial or ameliorative action possible under the circumstances. Sir J. C. Coyajee said that the only alternative before the world in the present economic situation is co-operation or chaos. The world has had ample experience of the great evil caused by the long depression which marked the seventies and eighties of the last century. A resolution was put forward which not only covered the above proposals, but also proposed the prosecution and continuation of studies relating to the problem of the recurrence of periods of economic depression. It might be that some of the factors in the development of the present depression appear somewhat abnormal. But then we have to take account of the fact that the war and its sequelæ have radically changed the economic situation in the world; and having once made a comprehensive study of the present great depression it would be a waste of economic effort not to retain some of the machinery instituted for studying the future problems of depressions. The resolution also called for the treatment of agricultural problems on a level of equality with those of industry and commerce.

26. The resolution found powerful supporters; it was backed by the delegates of Great Britain and the Dominions, by Japan and by various other Member States. The delegate for Ireland supported it on the ground that before that resolution there had been no really comprehensive attempt made to investigate or diagnose the economic disease from which the world has been suffering Even the study of tariffs and the proposals for a tariff truce were proposals which envisaged the matter only partially. Thus, as he observed, the removal of customs barriers, even if achieved, could not lead to a bigger market for Europe as a whole. Above all, attention might be drawn in this matter to the important proposals put forward in Mr. Graham's speech for an inquiry to collect all the facts in regard to the economic depression.

27. On the other hand, though there were no opponents of the resolution, attempts were made to modify it. Thus the delegate for the Netherlands was for a preliminary inquiry by the Financial and Economic Organisation of the League as to whether the main inquiry proposed by the resolution was to be undertaken. The motive of such a preliminary inquiry was stated to be economy. The delegate for France also moved an amendment referring the inquiry to the Economic Consultative Committee "without, however, engaging in any special procedure or special expense."

28. The resolution of the Indian Delegation was modified in form, though not in substance, by an amendment which introduced into it an explicit reference to the collaboration in the work of investigation on the part of the International Labour Office and of the International Institute for Agriculture at Rome. The resolution as framed originally provided for full and general co-operation on the part of all research committees and institutions which were capable of affording suitable or material assistance.

29. The resolution, as finally passed by the Committee and afterwards by the Assembly, was as follows:—

"The Assembly, impressed by the seriousness of the present situation, by the general recession of employment and trade, by the constant recurrence of such periods of economic depression and the failure up to the present to discover any concerted means for averting the losses incurred, resolves that the Economic and Financial Organisation of the League, which has already been studying the causes of fluctuations in the purchasing power of gold and their effect upon the economic life of the nations, should undertake the study of the course and phases of the present depression and the circumstances which led up to it, and for this purpose it should collect the information compiled by institutions already in existence in different countries, centralise such information and, where necessary, fill up any gaps that exist.

"For this purpose the Economic Organisation, advised by, in particular, the Economic Consultative Committee, should put itself in touch with national organisations, whether consultative or planning councils or research institutions concerned with this matter, and should further, with their aid, consider by what means the work now being conducted on the problem of the recurrence of periods of economic depression may be co-ordinated.

"Believing that the restoration of prosperity in the countries which are mainly concerned with agriculture and the production of raw materials is not only a worthy object in itself, but that it will also contribute to the restoration of prosperity in other countries, the Assembly desires that, in the course of the comprehensive inquiry into world economic depression referred to in the present recommendation, special attention should be devoted to the programme and investigations recommended by the agricultural experts who met in Geneva in January 1930, and to the result of the work carried out by international organisation specially qualified in such matters.

"It also recommends that, in connection with these investigations, account should be taken of the results of the inquiry conducted by the International Labour Office into unemployment and the work of other competent international bodies on this subject, in order that the Economic and Financial Organisation, having collected all the available information, may examine at the right moment the advisability of international action, due regard being had to the economic, financial and demographic aspects of the labour problem, including the question of raw materials."

(2) The Warsaw Conference Resolutions.

30. It will have been noted that the Indian delegate emphasised in his resolution the importance of finding a remedy for the agricultural aspect of the economic depression. As the representative of a great agricultural country like India he could have done no less. But the proposals put forward on behalf of India were perfectly general in character and involved no regional action or discriminatory features. Different in character were the resolutions based on the proceedings of the Conference held at Warsaw shortly before the Assembly by representatives of the agricultural countries of Eastern Europe. These resolutions were brought before the Assembly and the Second Committee by the delegates of the countries concerned. They frankly proposed, besides other points to which no objection could be taken, the granting of preferential treatment by European countries to agricultural products of European origin; further, they involved infringement of the most-favoured-nation clause. Regional understandings with preferential features were claimed to be the remedy for agricultural depression. Sir J. C. Coyajee pointed out that the main cause of the agricultural depression had been that production had been outrunning consumption, and that local agreements like those proposed at Warsaw could not be expected to remedy this state of affairs. Consumption can be effectively stimulated only by raising the general standard of living, and that task was quite beyond the power of local agreements like the one under discussion. What was wanted to achieve our purpose was a comprehensive policy.

31. He went on to point out that the present occasion was hardly the right one to embark on the implementing of the Warsaw Resolutions. The League had just created a committee to consider the general problem of European union and co-operation. To bring up simultaneously the particular question of partial and regional preferences within Europe was premature and might prejudice the general question. Finally the Indian delegate voiced the sentiments of the Dominions as well when he pointed out that non-European countries could have no ground for objecting if the European countries by independent negotiations make preferential agreements among themselves, but that it was a very different matter when such agreements were proposed to be made under the auspices and with the sanction of the League itself and through its machinery. The League was concerned with world affairs and policies in their most comprehensive aspects.

32. It is the interest of India along with other non-European agricultural countries to watch very carefully the tendency to promote regional economic agreements under the auspices of the League, and to insist on any necessary safeguards. The Second Committee believed that the Warsaw proposals come within the scope of the economic reorganisation to be discussed between the State signatories of the Protocol of Future Negotiations of 24th March 1930; but always provided that the non-signatory States may be asked to participate, and that the result of all such negotiations shall be brought before a Conference which all States without distinction will be asked to attend.

THE MOST-FAVOURED-NATION CLAUSE.

33. The advocates of the Warsaw resolutions had put forward the view that "there were no hard and fast principles which held good for ever, and that all principles must be adjusted to changing economic and social circumstances..... What we really want is an exception to the Most-Favoured-Nation clause." The preference which the countries of Eastern Europe desired was to be introduced as an exception to that clause. The representative of Austria urged that it was a mistake to insist upon the interpretation of the clause in an over-rigid sense. Others, notably the German delegate, spoke of the possibilities of a compromise. On the other hand the delegates of Denmark and Norway were against any restrictive interpretation of the clause, and opposed in particular the system of customs quotas.

34. Sir J. C. Coyajee pointed out that Indian traditions had been uniformly liberal in the matter of the Most-Favoured-Nation policy, and that India shared with Great Britain the record of never having gone back on the widest interpretation of the Most-Favoured-Nation clause. It was in the light of these liberal traditions that India could agree to most of the principles laid down by the Economic Committee with regard to the field of application of the clause. He expressed his dissent from and opposition to the system of quotas and of specialisation, which might be made to operate in such a way as to nullify at least partially the generality of the Most-Favoured-Nation clause.

CONCERTED ECONOMIC ACTION.

35. At the first Conference on this subject last spring it was found that the idea of a tariff truce could not be immediately adopted, and a result was reached which was somewhat different from what had been originally expected. It resulted in the Convention of March 1930 and a Protocol, which will form the basis of the work of the League in this direction for years to come. The Second Committee took up this aspect of economic work and urged the ratification of the Convention on the part of the largest possible number of States. It also suggested that at the Conference to be held in November 1930 the conditions under which the Commercial Convention would be brought into force should be decided and that consideration should be given to the programme of future negotiations. As regards dumping, which is a growing evil under the conditions of economic depression, the Committee condemned once more this unhealthy practice.

THE FINANCIAL COMMITTEE

36. Although it was unnecessary for us to take any part in the discussions on this subject, the reports presented to the Assembly this year are of so much interest and importance that we feel obliged briefly to describe their nature. Those who desire a closer acquaintance would do well to study the report of the 39th session of the Financial Committee and the report of the Second Committee to the Assembly on the subject.

37. Having practically completed four of the major tasks upon which it has been engaged in recent years—namely, the Greek Refugee Settlement Scheme, the Greek Financial Reconstruction, the Bulgarian Refugee Settlement Scheme, and the Financial Reorganisation of Estonia—the Committee had virtually reached the end of the phase of its work which consisted mainly in the preparation and execution of reconstruction schemes arising out of the dislocation caused by the war. The Committee is now free to devote more attention to general problems of international concern, and it took the opportunity to give a general description of its work and outlook. The Financial Committee has been singularly successful during the early period of the work of the League in rapidly achieving practical and positive results of far-reaching importance, and this has been the result of hard and disinterested technical work on the part of experts whose qualifications command general support and whose co-operation has been brought about through the machinery of the League. The work of the Committee falls into three main categories: (1) general financial question; (2) advice and assistance to particular States; and (3) advice on financial questions arising out of the current work of the Council. In particular the subjects falling under the first heading are of interest to India. One of these is the question of the influence of gold supplies on general economic welfare. A body of experts working on this subject under the Financial Committee has prepared an interim report, of which the conclusion is that the inadequacy of the supply of new gold available for money is likely in the next few years to become a factor which will exercise a depressing influence on prices; it considers that remedial measures may be found to prevent the consequences anticipated from making themselves felt for at any rate some time to come, and it indicates the directions in which such remedial measures may be sought. On another such subject, that of agricultural credits, results of interest to agricultural countries generally are likely to arise out of the study which is being made under the direction of the Committee on the organisation of the co-operative system in Bulgaria.

HEALTH ORGANISATION.

38. Our predecessors have invariably commented on the value of the work of the League in the sphere of Health, and have pointed out that in no other subject has the universality of the League been more fully applied and realised. By promoting co-operation in the development of health measures and in the study of infectious diseases of world-wide importance, the Health Organisation has been most successful in bringing countries into contact with one another, in effecting a realisation of the value of the League in distant countries which are not greatly concerned in a direct sense with its political work and in producing practical results in the field of health, which are of indirect importance from the economic and political point of view.

39. When the work of the Health Organisation in the past year came before the Second Committee, satisfactory progress was recorded in the numerous activities which had been under review in previous years. The most important development of the last year or two, a development which testifies in the most striking manner to the confidence which the Health Organisation has created in its efficiency and authority, has been the applications which certain Governments have addressed to the League for assistance in the improvement and reorganisation of their national health services. Last year the Health Committee had made recommendations to the Greek Government and those recommendations have been followed up and are already assuming concrete shape; for example, a new School of Hygiene is about to be opened in Greece. During the last 12 months the League has sent a Health Mission to China and the National Government of China has accepted, and is already in process of applying, the recommendations of this Mission. The Government of India had asked the delegation to support the work in China as representing an effort on the part of the League to assist Eastern countries, and Sir D. P. Sarvadhikary took occasion to express himself in this sense. Similar work is being undertaken in Bolivia. Accordingly, in Europe, Asia and South America the Health Organisation is contributing in a most practical way to the improvement of health conditions.

40. In the course of the discussion Sir D. P. Sarvadhikary joined with other delegates in congratulating the Organisation on the success of the year's work. He made various observations on the programme of the Health Committee from the point of view of India, and he agreed that the improvement of health conditions was to a large extent a matter of economic interest. He referred to the collaboration between General Graham and Colonel Christophers and the Malaria Commission, and he expressed appreciation for the reappointment of General Graham to the Health Committee. He regretted that, owing to a visit to Europe early in the year and to various important engagements in the East, General Graham would not be able to attend the important meeting of the Health Committee which was to be held at the end of September, and he suggested that the dates and programmes of the meetings of the Health Committee might perhaps be arranged with more foresight and more consideration of the convenience of the representatives of distant countries; in this respect there was room for greater regularity and co-ordination in the development of the work. He thanked the Dutch Government for the arrangements made in connection with the last session of the Advisory Council of the Eastern Bureau which was held at Bandoeng, and for the valuable facilities granted to the members for studying the methods employed in dealing with the health problems of Java. In the course of references to various subjects which were being undertaken, he said that the Government of India hoped shortly to take steps to prevent the entry of the virus of yellow fever into India. Among various subjects which might be undertaken, he suggested an enquiry into the quality and nutritive value of the various artificial foods prepared for the consumption of infants, and into the possibility of standardising these foods at a reasonable cost, and he also mentioned the desirability of an enquiry into the supplies of rice from the point of view of nutrition.

Intellectual Co-operation.

41. The ideas which underlie the Organisation for Intellectual Co-operation have never failed to appeal to Indian delegates at the Assembly. But during the initial and experimental period the measure in which practical effect has been given to these ideas has not corresponded with the hopes which had been formed. In 1929 it was felt that the time had come to overhaul the Organisation, and the energies of the International Committee at its last session had been mainly concentrated on this task. The Assembly was presented with the recommendations of a committee of enquiry in the form in which they had been approved by the International Committee and by the Council of the League. These recommendations appear to be suitably adapted to the end in view, and it is hoped that a new phase in the work of the Organisation will be successfully inaugurated. The main principle is to restrict the subjects under treatment to those upon which the available resources can be effectively concentrated at any given time; and the Institute at Paris, which is the executive organ of the Organisation, will be used mainly to provide machinery for co-ordinating the work of national institutions, to effect contact between experts in different countries and to make known the results in a series of publications rather than to carry out original work on its own account.

42. Sir Jagadis Bose, whose services have been at the disposal of the International Committee for some years, ceased automatically this year to be a member of the Committee, and it is hoped that his place will be worthily filled when the Council of the League comes to fill the vacancies in the near future.

43. Speaking in the debate in the Second Committee, Sir D. P. Sarvadhikary noted the absence in the report of any reference to civilisations outside Europe. Many of the ideas which seem to be new in Europe were old in Asia. India, possessed resources that could well be utilised by the International Committee, and he had hopes that in the time to come it would be possible for India to co-operate fully with the Committee through the medium of the great intellectual forces of India. He welcomed particularly a suggestion bearing upon the organisation of study travel groups which would secure contact between teachers, scholars and students in Europe and other countries on the lines which had already been followed in the Health Organisation. He thought that one subject with which the Organisation might deal was the evils of objectionable cinema exhibitions. He regretted that during his short visit to Paris it had not been possible to get an adequate idea of the work of the Institute, and he hoped that when the reorganisation was complete a successful future would lie before it. The contribution of India to this work would be that of high ideals which, as the report pointed out, were the real basis of all stability and peace. Unless the minds of the peoples were attuned to peace no instruments such as conferences and conventions would bring peace about, and he thought therefore that the Organisation for Intellectual Co-operation was one of the most important branches of the League.

44. When the report of the Second Committee came before the Assembly for adoption, Sir D. P. Sarvadhikary repeated his views before a wider audience. He was glad that the League dealt not only with facts and realities, as the materialistic world would call them, but also with ideals, and sentiments; the League's work in this sphere must be adequately provided for if abiding peace was to be secured. The League of Nations for the last 10 years had been steadily gaining ground, but not quite on the right lines for lack of the appreciation of ideals. There was already contact between the League and India, but it was not sufficiently close or frequent. When better and intimate contact had been established, great results would ensue. The attempt to further establish world peace through understanding was evidence of the beginning of sanity, but to carry it further was a task which individuals and nations themselves could not carry out and international co-operation was essential. The fact that the Indian Delegation had been led last year by an Indian in high Government office, and was led this year by one of the Ruling Princes of India, showed that the Princes and peoples of India were coming together and trying to realise as far as possible the ideals of the League. In many matters India had contributions to make, but her greatest contribution must be in the region of intellectual co-operation. The saying that the East and the West would never meet was a misquotation and untrue in the highest sense; they were capable of being brought together if the plane on which they met was high enough, and it was on the level which they were then discussing that the East and the West should and could be united.

COMMITTEE III—Reduction of Armaments.

Disarmament.

45. As already mentioned no session of the Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference had been held during the past year. The London Naval Conference had taken place and had resulted, in an agreement between the British Commonwealth of Nations, the United States of America and Japan upon the question of substance and also with France and Italy upon the question of method. The agreement on the question of method cleared the way for further progress in the work of the Preparatory Commission for the Disarmament Conference, but it had not been possible to arrange a meeting of the Preparatory Commission until November. Meanwhile, naval discussions were proceeding between the French and Italian Governments just before and during the Assembly, but these negotiations came to a standstill before the end of the Assembly. In his speech in the opening debate in the Assembly, Mr. Henderson had stated that the British Government regarded the obligation of disarmament contained in Article 8 of the Covenant as being as sacred as any other obligation arising out of the treaties of peace, and this declaration was warmly welcomed by the German Delegation and those associated with them.

46. The debate in the Third Committee turned on the question whether the Assembly should decide that the work of the Preparatory Commission must be completed at the session which was to begin in November, and whether it should determine without reserve that the Disarmament Conference itself must be held in 1931. The German Delegation and those associatd with them pressed strongly for a categorical resolution in the sense of immediate and definitive action. The British Delegation, though second to none in their desire to proceed with disarmament, were unwilling to accept a motion which might result in the Conference being held before the preparations were complete and the atmosphere favourable.

47. In the end, the Third Committee adopted a resolution which noted that the results of the London Naval Conference were of a nature to facilitate a general agreement on methods at the next meeting of the Preparatory Commission, and which expressed the conviction that at its next session the Preparatory Commission would be able to finish the preparation of the draft Convention and would thus enable the Council to convene as soon as possible the Disarmament Conference.

48. When the report of the Third Committee and its resolution came before the Assembly, the German and Austrian Delegations announced that they would abstain from voting because the resolution failed to fix a date for the Disarmament Conference. These announcements were followed by a speech on behalf of France from M. Briand, who, in justifying the cautious attitude of France towards disarmament in the absence of a full guarantee of security, made discreet allusions to the results of the recent election in Germany, on account of which the French attitude had obviously for the time being hardened.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.

49. The general nature of this scheme has been described in the reports of our predecessors. The delegation last year summarised the discussion of the Ninth Assembly and reported that the scheme had been referred back to the Financial Committee and the Committee on Arbitration and Security for reconsideration on certain points. These two Committees had settled most of the points at issue and the remainder were settled by the Third Committee of the Assembly, which also introduced certain improvements.

50. The most important questions were the degree in which the Convention should recognise the right to financial assistance of a State which was actually the victim of aggression, and the conditions under which loans should be granted when there was a threat of war, but not actual commencement of hostilities. In the first case, the right is recognised in the Convention unless the Council unanimously decides that a loan should not be granted. In the second case, the grant of a loan is subject to two conditions—namely, that one of the parties must have failed to conform to the steps taken by the Council, and, secondly, that the Council must be of opinion that peace cannot otherwise be safeguarded.

51. The British Delegation had decided to make their final accession dependent upon the conclusion of a Disarmament Conference. There was some opposition to the idea of introducing this into the Convention on the ground that the previous acceptance of the plan for financial assistance might be a factor facilitating disarmament. An article was eventually adopted making the operation of the plan for financial assistance dependent upon the entry into force and the maintenance in force of a plan for the reduction of armaments.

52. The Indian Delegation had raised in 1929 the question of the scale of contributions to the expenditure of the League, which was to be used for the distribution of guarantees under this plan. For reasons, the practical force of which we had to recognise, the Financial Committee found it impossible to provide in the Convention for the substitution of the revised scale of contribution when it comes into force for the present provisional scale. The Third Committee recognised the inconvenience to which a Government would be exposed if its scale of contribution to the expenditure of the League was proportionately reduced while its liability for guarantees continued to be determined by the old scale, but it was unable to go further towards meeting this difficulty than by observing that it will always be possible for a contracting party, before the Convention is renewed, to enter into negotiations with the other contracting parties if it desires the adoption of a new scale.

53. In the Third Committee Sir Denys Bray recalled the remarks of Sir Muhammad Habibullah last year and said that the attitude of India was one of sympathy, tempered with cautious reserve. Owing to her geographical position, India was unlikely to be concerned in the direct advantages which this Convention provided. It might not be very easy to justify in the Indian Legislature the assumption of further commitments in view of the lack of direct advantages. It might have been easier to recommend the adherence of India if the suggestion made last year regarding the basis of the distribution of the guarantees could have been adopted. Much would depend, moreover, on the degree of universality which the Convention might secure. If the Convention attracted support, not merely in Europe, but in Asia and elsewhere, India would probably desire to collaborate in such a world-wide contribution to the movement for the suppression of war.

54. The Convention was opened for public signature in the Assembly on the 2nd October, and was signed by 28 States, some with reservations. We did not sign. The non-signatories included Italy, Germany and Japan, together with several British Dominions and the majority of the non-European States.

CONVENTION TO STRENGTHEN THE MEANS OF PREVENTING WAR.

55. The Assembly of 1928 had adopted a draft text designed to serve as a model for bilateral or plurilateral arrangements. In 1929 the British Delegation proposed that this so-called model treaty should be converted into a general Convention for the adherence of as many as possible of the Members of the League. The Committee on Arbitration and Security had been instructed to recommend the modifications which would be necessary so to convert it; but the Committee had not been successful in producing a single text, and in important parts there were alternative drafts based on fundamentally different conceptions. The idea of the Convention was that on the occurrence of a dangerous international dispute, and while means for the pacific settlement of a dispute were under consideration, the Council could issue recommendations to the parties providing for some sort of armistice and for the avoidance of any aggravation of the circumstances, and that all parties should bind themselves in advance to accept and act upon such recommendations, thus converting a moral obligation into a treaty obligation. But difficulties had arisen in defining the terms upon which the parties would be prepared in any and every circumstance to surrender their liberty of action, and some parties, not relying solely upon good faith for the discharge of the obligations, wished to secure drastic provisions for supervision and sanctions. The Third Committee, faced with these differences of opinion, and after an attempt had been made to reconcile the differences in a Special Committee, came to the conclusion that the subject called for further study, and recommended that the Council should be invited to form a Special Committee to reconsider it and to submit a report for discussion at the next Assembly.

COMMITTEE IV.—Budget and Financial Questions.

THE BUDGET.

56. The total Budget approved in 1930 was 28,210,248 francs. The estimates for 1931, as presented in the main Budget, amounted to 29,966,436 francs. After the deduction of 795,822 francs capital expenditure on account of the new League wireless station decided upon in 1930, these estimates showed an excess on current expenditure over the preceding year of 960,366 francs. In addition to this the supplementary Budget for 1931 amounted to 1,951,995 francs, more than three-fourths of which was for carrying out the recommendations of the Committee on the Reorganisation of the Secretariat, etc. There were also supplementary estimates for proposals involving expenditure put forward during the session of the Assembly.

57. The increase naturally called for criticism, and in the general discussion which preceded the examination of the details there seemed to be a demand for economy on a wider scale than usual. A number of delegates referred to the prevailing stringency of national finances and to the disappointing results of the work of the League in the last year, and announced their intention of voting only for indispensable credits. But when the details came under examination there was in fact little scope for effective criticism and the estimates went through with more ease than usual.

58. A large part of the increase was due to the proposals for the reorganisation of the Secretariat, etc. This subject is dealt with separately, and it will suffice here to say that the changes actually sanctioned this year will cost some 300,000 francs less than the original estimate for the proposals put forward by the Committee.

59. The other main items which went to make up the excess were (1) new posts and regradings chiefly in the subordinate services, most of which were regarded as overdue; (2) increments of salary; (3) the operation and maintenance of the wireless telegraph station approved in 1930; (4) additional office accommodation imperative on medical grounds; (5) increase of the overseas work of the Health Organisation; (6) provision for the decisions of 1930 as to the remuneration of the Judges of the Permanent Court of International Justice. In view of the failure of the recent Conference for the Codification of International Law at The Hague, Sir J. C. Coyajee objected to the credit proposed for the continuance of this work in 1931. This objection was afterwards made effective by the decision of the First Committee, which has been reported above. When the estimates for the International Labour Organisation were before the Committee, Sir J. C. Coyajee stated, in pursuance of the wishes of the Government of India, that India abstained from any criticism of these estimates this year in view of the proposals which Sir Atul Chatterjee had submitted to the Governing Body of the Organisation for the standardisation of the International Labour Organisation Budget, and in the hope that some satisfactory arrangement on these lines would shortly be arrived at.

60. When the supplementary estimates came before the Fourth Committee it appeared that the Supervisory Commission proposed to cut down from 100,000 francs to 50,000 francs the credit for carrying out the enquiry on the economic crisis which had been approved by the Second Committee on the motion of the Indian Delegation. Sir J. C. Coyajee stated that the Indian Delegation was, of course, in favour of all reasonable economy, and, in particular, had always supported the authority of the Supervisory Commission; but the prosecution of the enquiry was important and urgent, and he wished to know whether the reduction of the estimate would have any serious effect on the time within which it could be completed. Other delegates spoke in the same sense, and when it transpired that the reduction of the estimate would delay the completion of the work and would merely involve a transference of the amount to be deducted to the estimates for 1932, the Fourth Committee decided, after a vote had been taken, to restore the original estimate.

61. Doubts were expressed by some delegates whether the Supervisory Commission was scrutinising the estimates of the League with the same vigour as in the past. The Supervisory Commission has possibly been somewhat discouraged by the general failure of the Assembly and its Committees to face the question of expenditure in a resolute spirit. The spokesman of the Supervisory Commission stated that the Commission had no authority to criticise or veto expenditure resulting directly or otherwise from the decisions of the Assembly itself; it could only supervise expenditure on measures decided upon by the Assembly and enlighten the Assembly on the financial implications of its programme. It is obvious that the attitude of the Supervisory Commission must be to some extent a reflection of that of the Fourth Committee.

62. The Budget for 1931, as finally approved amounted to 31,637,501 francs, involving an increase of 3,427,253 francs on the Budget for 1930.

MEMBERSHIP OF THE SUPERVISORY COMMISSION.

63. The Supervisory Commission consists of experts (Lord Meston is one of the number) who serve independently and on their own authority, and not as the representatives of the States of which they are nationals. Nevertheless, owing to the influence and importance of this body there has been a desire for some system providing for rotation of the appointments so that the nationals of as many countries as possible may share in the work. The Swiss Government proposed that members retiring after three years' service should be eligible for reappointment only after an interval of three years. This proposal was supported by several delegates. But there were fortunately other delegates who insisted upon efficiency based on continuous experience. A compromise was decided upon under which, with effect from 1931, members will be eligible for immediate reappointment for a second term of three years, but after six years' total service must wait another three years before they can be reappointed.

64. At a later stage the Assembly reappointed M. Réveillaud, who has served continuously for a number of years, and also M. Osusky, who retired last year after serving as Chairman for some time. The efficiency of the Commission is therefore assured for some years to come.

REORGANISATION OF THE SECRETARIAT, &c.

65. It will be remembered that the Tenth Assembly appointed a Committee of 13 members, which included Sir A. Chatterjee, to examine 'what steps should be taken to ensure in future, as in the past, the best possible administrative results for the Secretariat, the International Labour Office and the Registry of the Permanent Court of Justice.' The report of the Committee was ready at the end of June. Addenda continued to appear even after the commencement of the Eleventh Session and became available to the delegates only in Geneva.

66. In such circumstances there was much to be said for postponing the consideration of proposals which, taken in their entirety, covered a wide field, and some of which were highly technical. But the pressure for immediate disposal of the subject could not be resisted. Practically all the poposals contained in the report, except those concerning the politically contentious question of the composition of the higher directing staff, were accepted. The Indian Delegation fought hard to secure time for expert scrutiny of the pensions scheme with special reference to the question whether a system of Provident Fund would not be a more appropriate and economical alternative, but did not receive enough support. The view that the pensions scheme should be brought into force from January 1931 finally prevailed.

66A. The main features of the report and of the discussion thereon may now be set out.

(i) International Character of the Secretariat.

67. The Committee unanimously placed in the forefront of their report the principle that the officials of the Secretariat of the League of Nations are exclusively international, that their duties are not national but international, and that by accepting appointments under the League they pledge themselves to discharge their functions and to regulate their conduct in the interests of the League alone. Axiomatic as it may seem, this principle required reinforcement. The Indian Delegation gave it their emphatic adhesion in common with the representatives of other countries. The recommendations made by the Committee to amend the staff regulations to enforce this principle were unanimously accepted.

(ii) Duration of Engagement of the Staff.

68. The next point dealt with by the Committee was the duration of engagement of the staff. The majority, which included all the members except the German and the Italian, pronounced in favour of the principle of permanency, which they suggested should apply to all except the directing officers of the Secretariat, i.e., the Secretary, Deputy Secretary and Under Secretaries-General and Directors. The minority differed from the majority as regards chiefs of services and members of section whose status and duties resemble those of the higher national civil services. For this class the minority recommended renewable seven years' contract in order that contract with public opinion in the various countries belonging to the League might be maintained and provision made for representation in the Secretariat of all systems of civilisation. On this point the sympathies of the Indian Delegation were with the minority though for different reasons. The objective of the minority was to establish a balance of power in the superior ranks of the Secretariat. The Indian view was that only by board-basing recruitment for these branches of the Secretariat could their spirit and the outlook be made truly international. Mr. Bajpai, who acted for His Highness the Maharaja of Bikaner for this subject, contended that this objective could best be secured by reserving an adequate proportion of posts in the first division to be filled on temporary contract by recruitment according to some principle of national rotation. In deference, however, to the view of the Secretary-General that the fixing of a proportion of posts to be filled by rotation would be unfair to those already in the service of the League, whose prospects of promotion would thereby be restricted, the proposal was not pressed. The intervention of the Indian Delegation, however, was not without result in that Sir Eric Drummond gave an assurance that, while not tying himself to any proportion, it would be his endeavour to select for posts in this division, as they fall vacant, nationals of countries which at present are inadequately represented in the Secretariat.

69. As regards the second and third divisions of the staff which are engaged upon work of a routine character and are for the most part locally recruited, the Indian Delegation saw no reason to differ from the unanimous conclusion of the Committee of Thirteen which had the wholehearted support of all the other delegations.

(ii) The High Direction of the Secretariat.

70. The question which involved the sharpest difference of opinion and gave rise to the most lively debates was that of the organisation of what may conveniently be termed the Directing Staff of the Secretariat. At present, this consists of a Secretary-General, who is of British nationality, a French Deputy Secretary-General, three Under Secretaries-General, who are nationals of Germany, Italy and Japan respectively, and six Directors and four Chiefs of Section. The majority of the Committee of Thirteen recommended the creation of five new posts of Under Secretaries-General in order to satisfy the legitimate aspirations of the States Members of the League who are not permanently represented on the Council. They considered that such a result would not only be in consonance with the principle of equality of States and allay the discontent that now exists among the minor Powers at the virtual exclusion of their nationals from these responsible posts, but would also offer a wider field from which to draw the higher officials of the Secretariat. The minority, which comprised Count Bernstorff and Professor Gallavresi, recommended the addition of only one post of Under Secretary-General to the existing cadre, but sought to secure co-ordination among the Directing Staff by the formation of a committee consisting of the Under Secretaries-General, whom the Secretary-General would be bound to consult on all questions of importance. From the point of view of the countries whose nationals are either unrepresented on the Secretariat or hold only minor positions, the majority proposal was the more attractive. The interests of India, whose contribution to the expenses of the League is second only to that of the Powers permanently represented on the Council and who has much to gain by securing an effective chance of representation in the higher direction of the Secretariat, would obviously be better served by adoption of the majority than of the minority proposal. The Indian Delegation accordingly supported the majority view, even though it was clear that this would involve expenditure which perhaps could not strictly be justified on purely administrative grounds. The conclusion to remit consideration of the whole question of the higher direction of the Secretariat to a fresh Committee, which would report in time for the next Assembly to take decisions on it, really represents a compromise between the two groups of great Powers, viz., Great Britain, France and Japan on the one hand, and Germany and Italy on the other. The minor Powers acquiesced in the conclusion, partly because, owing to the prevailing world economic depression, their representatives were reluctant to agree to the majority recommendation with its consequential increase of cost, and partly because some of them felt that a more economical solution of the difficulty might be found along the line of gradual abolition of the posts of Under Secretaries-General. On the new Committee India will be represented by Sir Atul Chatterjee. This satisfactory result was due to the useful work done by Sir Atul on the Committee of Thirteen and to recognition of the ability of India, in view of her experience of service questions, to contribute usefully to the solution of the outstanding problem. It is neither possible nor necessary to anticipate the recommendations of the new Committee. The Government of India will, it is hoped, have its report in good time to give instructions to the Delegation to the next session of the Assembly. With this object, the Indian spokesman on the Fourth Committee pressed for completion of the report by the 1st May and succeeded in getting this date adopted by the Fourth Committee.

(iv) Pensions Scheme.

71. The scheme of pensions which the Committee of Thirteen had unanimously proposed was adopted by the Assembly and will come into effect from the beginning of 1931. The revised estimate of its cost for the Secretariat, the International Labour Office and the Registry of the Court of International Justice is over a million francs. Strong support for the principle of pensions was forthcoming on the ground that pensions are an attribute of permanent service, and that the non-adoption of a pension scheme would be a breach of faith with the staff and a cause of uncertainty as to their future which would detract seriously from the efficiency of the League's servants. In our view, the first argument did not sufficiently take account of the fact that for a mixed system of permanent and temporary engagements, a Provident Fund was probably more appropriate than a system of Pensions. As to the latter argument we thought that the reasonable expectations of the staff in regard to adequate provision for maintenance after retirement could be achieved just as well by a system of Provident Fund as by a scheme of Pensions. The real grievance against the present Provident Fund maintained by the League is that the contribution made to it by the League is ungenerous. The Indian Delegation contended that the Assembly had a duty to the States Members to satisfy itself that provision for the legitimate requirements of the staff was being made with full regard for economy, and along lines that had the approval of experts. The Draft Pension Regulations which the Committee of Thirteen had prepared could not really be said to satisfy either of these conditions, and the estimates of cost that were put forward were admittedly incomplete. The draft regulations were examined by a Sub-Committee of the Fourth Committee, but this Sub-Committee had no mandate for a radical examination of the problem and confined itself to points of detail. The result was the adoption of a scheme, of which the merits are doubtful. It is hoped that future Indian Delegations will watch its effect on the budget of the League with care. Indeed, we would suggest that a special annual report on the operation of the scheme should be asked for. Should experience reveal that the scheme is administratively unsound or financially extravagant, a special inquiry into its working could be legitimately demanded.

72. Two comparatively minor points arising out of the report of the Committee of Thirteen may finally be mentioned. The majority had recommended the creation of a number of posts of Counsellor on increased salary to compensate heads of section for the loss of prospects of promotion to the post of Director which the principle of filling such posts on the basis of nationality might entail. This proposal, as well the suggestion of the Secretary-General, that while the rank might be given at once as a mark of honour the question of attaching a higher salary to the bearer of the title might be postponed, was rejected. But the equally sound objection to removing the distinction between members of sections A and B of the First Division of the Secretariat and the International Labour Office at considerable additional cost did not receive the support of the Fourth Committee.

73. The debates in the Fourth Committee on the report of the Committee of Thirteen were prolonged and often lively. There was no lack of interest in the proceedings, either on the part of the members or that of the audience. But the popular interest was mainly political and inspired by the knowledge that over the difference between the majority and minority views there would be a tussle between the Great Powers. The representatives of other countries on the Committee, in so fas as they were not pledged to support the protagonists of the majority or minority view for political reasons or jealous of the predominance of the nationals of these Powers in the Secretariat, were concerned mainly with avoiding addition to the already heavy budget of the League. Those who concentrated upon examining what was primarily an administrative problem with a single eye to administrative efficiency found themselves in a minority. But the insufficiency of the time allowed for calm and careful examination of reports covering a wide and sometimes technical field must bear the main share of the responsibility for this state of affairs. The need of allowing more time for consideration of the League's reports requiring action must be repeatedly emphasised if the danger of hasty decisions based on incomplete scrutiny is to be avoided.

COMMITTEE V.—Social and Humanitarian Questions.

OPIUM AND DRUGS.

74. The principal work of the League during the past year had been the preparations for the Conference on the Limitation of the Manufacture of Drugs. The Advisory Committee had drawn up a plan and the procedure was to include (1) the collection of the necessary statistical and other information, (2) a preliminary conference of drug manufacturers, and (3) a limited conference for the negotiation of a Convention for which the Council had already issued invitations to 25 States.

75. This procedure was not being carried out as rapidly as the Assembly of last year had hoped, as the Manufacturers' Conference could not be held until the month following the Assembly and the final Conference had been fixed for May 1931. In addition to the plans for the limitation of manufacture, there were various other aspects of the subject under discussion.

76. In the course of the general debate Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan said that the limitation of manufacture could not come too soon or be too effective so far as India was concerned. In spite of energetic preventive measures, India suffered greatly from illicit imports, and after the sacrifices she had made in connection with the export of opium, she expected responsive action from the countries of manufacture. He mentioned some leading facts and figures in regard to the success of the policy pursued in India in recent times for the reduction of the cultivation and consumption of opium, and added that certain internal problems which were of domestic rather than of international concern were receiving careful attention. India was waiting for the manufacturing countries to take practical measures to discharge the obligations which they had already accepted under the Conventions, and that India herself was ready to fall in with any plan for limitation, provided only that it was practical and effective. While disappointment might be felt at the delay which had occurred, he maintained that the foundations had been soundly laid by the Advisory Committee, and that impatience must not be allowed to interfere with the essential preparatory work. He mentioned the difficulty which arose from the development of manufacture in countries which were not members of the League and not parties to the decisions of the League, in particular in Turkey. It was a regrettable and alarming fact that restrictions in certain countries tended to drive the evil further afield and that the recent developments in Turkey, if they continued, might undermine any arrangements that might be agreed to among other countries for the limitation of manufacture. He thought that while the conclusion of an agreement for the limitation of manufacture must be the principal work of the League in the immediate future, efforts in other directions should not be relaxed, and he supported the view of the Dutch delegate that it was necessary to rely upon, and maintain in full vigour, the machinery of the Geneva Convention. He referred to the observations of the Advisory Committee as to the importance of centralised police work in each country, and of international co-operation between the national police services. After mentioning the enquiry which had recently been conducted in India as to the advantages and methods of centralised police activity in regard to the illicit traffic, and the possibility that a Central Information Bureau would be created in India, he expressed a hope that the Japanese Government would be prepared to accept a suggestion which was being made to them, that personal contact and consultations should be established between the Japanese and the Indian authorities. He referred to the passage in the report of the Advisory Committee which gave details of the various brands of cocaine seized in the illicit traffic in India and other places in the Far East. Most of it was apparently of Japanese origin, and he expressed dissatisfaction that firms whose products had been frequently found in the illicit traffic should still be licensed to manufacture, and that the sources of certain notorious brands should still remain a mystery. He expressed some surprise that the Japanese Government had not been able to supply an authoritative figure for legitimate internal consumption of cocaine, and said that until this figure was available there must be grave suspicions as to the destination of the bulk of the cocaine manufactured in Japan, and there would be no means of estimating the sufficiency of the decision announced last year to reduce the manufacture of cocaine in Japan by 10 per cent. for four years. Having regard to these facts, he appealed to the Japanese delegate to represent strongly to his Government the necessity for early and effective action. He recognised that new and stricter regulations had been introduced in Japan, and hoped that these would be strictly applied. In reference to the increase in the size of the Advisory Committee from 14 to 21 members, he expressed the hope that when the mandate of the new Committee expired in three years' time, the phase of activity upon which the League was now engaged would have been successfully terminated, and that it would then be possible to restore the Advisory Committee to a more reasonable size. The Advisory Committee had done excellent work in establishing and giving publicity to the facts and in recommending sound and practical measures of control. If that work had not yet produced its full fruits, the fault lay with the Governments rather than with the Committee. Finally, he expressed the hope that the Committee would continue to enjoy the confidence of the States Members.

77. Speaking later in the debate, the Japanese delegate said that he himself deplored the smuggling which took place. Owing to defects in the Japanese regulations it had not so far been possible to trace the sources of the traffic. These defects had been remedied in the revised regulations, and the Japanese authorities hoped that their inquiries would be more successful in future. He said that the amount of cocaine manufactured in 1929 in Japan was 1,215 kilogrammes, this being more than 200 kilogrammes less than the amount manufactured in 1928. The Japanese Government had estimated the legitimate consumption in 1929 in Japan proper and in Japanese territories as being a little over 1,000 kilogrammes, though it was not yet possible to say whether this was the normal amount of consumption. He gave further figures to show that the surplus unaccounted for was about 1,700 kilogrammes, which included the quantities held by retailers and doctors and others licensed to keep and dispense cocaine for medical and scientific purposes. He maintained that the basis on which medical practice was organised in Japan justified the retention of a comparatively high quantity of the drug in the hands of retailers and dispensers. Finally he said that the Japanese authorities were endeavouring to place drugs under severe control so that leakage into the hands of smugglers would become impossible, and that in this work they would do their best and would co-operate with other Governments so far as the international side of the question was concerned.

78. The most important and controversial matter which was discussed in the Committee was the nature of the Conference to be held for the limitation of manufacture in May next. As already mentioned, the Assembly of 1929 had decided after much discussion that the Conference was to be of a limited and not of a general character, and the Council had already issued invitations to 25 States The manufacturing countries are only about 10 in number, and as the essential purpose of the Conference is to secure the acceptance of obligations to limit manufacture by those States, there were strong reasons for restricting the attendance of non-manufacturing States. Nevertheless, the proposal for a general Conference was revived and strongly pressed, on the plausible but not really convincing ground that all States are interested as consumers. The Indian Delegation, with a few others, attempted, but without success, to resist the strong current of opinion which was created in favour of a general Conference Eventually the Committee decided, after a vote from which we abstained, to convert the Conference arranged for May next from a limited into a general Conference. We fear that the prospect of a successful issue of the Conference has not been improved by this decision.

79. Another subject of discussion was a resolution submitted by the Chinese delegate for an inquiry to be carried out by the League into the nature of the extent and methods of the illicit traffic in drugs. This resolution seemed to fail to take account of the work which the League had already done for years past through the Advisory Committee with a large measure of success. Eventually the resolution was modified and elaborated, and in its final form it may succeed in extracting information from countries which have so far failed to co-operate with the League in this respect, without at the same time imposing any new administrative burden on countries like India which have already furnished regular and plentiful information. The resolution also asks that the Advisory Committee should report on the possibility of collecting estimates of the number of drug addicts in each country, together with information as to the varieties and quantities of the drugs which they consume. In the nature of things this inquiry will be of a somewhat unpractical nature and its results cannot be very complete or reliable. Nevertheless, the demand for such an inquiry was insistent.

TRAFFIC IN WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

80. The work of the League in this field is a valuable example of the effects which can be produced, not by creating obligations, but by the convincing analysis of essential aims and by mutual enlightenment as to the experience of different countries in securing these aims. The facts which have been collected have shown that the traffic is dependent upon certain factors (as, for instance, the system of licensed houses), and the experience of those Governments who have succeeded in removing or mitigating those factors is placed at the disposal of those who have still to do so. Governments are therefore, to an increasing extent, placed in the position of knowing both what to do and how to do it. Evidence of the fruitfulness of this procedure accumulates each year, and this year was no exception. It is now recognised, as proved by experience, that the licensed house system is not justified as a means of protecting public order and health, and that the abolition of the system, which is essential to the suppression of the traffic, can be carried out without disadvantage in other directions.

81. It is due to the provision of funds by the American Bureau of Social Hygiene that an inquiry has been undertaken in the East similar to the inquiry which recently took place in Europe and America, and a Travelling Commission of three members, chosen by the Council, has started for the East with the object of ascertaining the facts on the spot. The procedure which has already produced valuable results in the West has therefore now been applied to the East.

82. The Fifth Committee had no decisions to take on this subject this year, but in the course of its review of the year's work it had occasion to note the encouraging statements made relative to progress in the abolition of the licensed house system, and it recorded its approval of the information which is being compiled and distributed as to the laws and regulations of many countries on various aspects of the social problem. Sir D. P. Sarvadhikary joined in the general expressions of approval of the League's work in this sphere and of the spirit of moderation and of "hastening slowly" which animated the efforts of the Advisory Commission. He associated himself with the representative of Japan in emphasising the necessity for dealing with questions of this sort with due regard to the peculiar circumstances and atmosphere of the countries concerned. He welcomed the appointment of the Travelling Commission and hoped that when in due course it came to India its visit would be fruitful of results, but he expressed the opinion that the international traffic was practically non-existent in India. He referred specially to the question of the cinema and its influence on morals, and he thought that, as in the case of manufactured drugs, it was necessary to deal with this question in the country of origin as well as in that of exhibition; great harm was being done in Eastern countries by cinema exhibitions which showed European life in an undesirable light. He believed that in certain communities there were so-called marriage laws which permitted of an undesirable state of affairs; it was a matter of great delicacy to deal with this subject with due regard to local susceptibilities and legitimate local customs, but nevertheless such problems should be radically investigated with a view to the removal of all abuses.

PENAL ADMINISTRATION.

83. This question has hovered on the border-line of League activities for some time, but it was for the first time definitely on the Agenda of the Assembly this year. In January last the Council had authorised a procedure for collecting the views of the International Prison Commission and the Howard League for Penal Reform as to what aspects of the question could advantageously be dealt with internationally through the League, and after that for consulting the International Labour Office, the Economic Committee, the Health Committee and the Child Welfare Committee. It was made clear in the Council that these preliminary studies were to refer only to the collection of information.

84. The Secretary-General presented a report which showed that this procedure was not complete and that the full material would not be available until next year. In these conditions there had been no opportunity of consulting the Government of India, and it was not even known in advance whether the aspects of penal administration which might be recommended as suitable for treatment through the machinery of the League related to matters of domestic concern or were restricted to international matters such as the treatment of foreign prisoners.

85. The British delegate, Miss Susan Lawrence, brought forward a resolution recommending to the favourable consideration of Governments certain standard minimum rules for the treatment of prisoners which had been prepared by the International Prison Commission and asking for reports on these rules with reference to the situation in each country; the resolution also proposed the appointment of a Committee to confer with the International Prison Commission as to the best way in which the League might co-operate for the development of prison administration in accordance with modern standards. In its original form this resolution seemed to go too far. In the first place, while we were aware that the Government of India belonged to the International Prison Commission and had therefore had an opportunity of considering the standard minimum rules, we did not know whether, or to what extent, they had concurred in the rules or whether they would wish the Assembly to give the rules any measure of endorsement. It also seemed doubtful whether a procedure should be approved which might to some extent prejudice the general question of the League taking up domestic matters of penal administration in any form. We also felt that the practice of seeking decisions on points of substance in subjects which Governments, as a whole, had had no opportunity of adequately considering was one to be resisted in the absence of any consideration of urgency.

86. We had some preliminary discussion with the British Delegation, who were good enough to modify their draft resolution in a direction which partly met our objections. Sir Deva Prasad Sarvadhikary therefore felt justified in supporting the modified draft with some reservations. He said that though the Government of India was one of the members of the International Prison Commission, it had not had any opportunity of considering the proposals contained in the resolution and that the Indian Delegation was therefore without instructions in regard to them. He could not commit the Government of India in so far as the resolution might amount to a recommendation of the standard minimum rules, but he thought that there could be no objection to simply circulating the rules to the Governments for consideration and report. The question of penal administration was for the most part purely national, but there might be aspects that would make it more than national, and if violence was done to humanitarian principles international principles must certainly prevail. How far this might be the case in any individual country would have to be considered when the information had been collected. He then referred to the situation as regards penal administration in India and the improvements which had been made or were awaiting the provision of financial resources. It was felt in India that further reforms were overdue, but that was not a matter which concerned the League. He was therefore prepared to accept the British draft resolution on the clear understanding that it implied nothing beyond the collection of information, and that, owing to the shortness of time, he could not accept any obligations on the part of the Government of India.

87. Eventually, the resolution was revised by a sub-committee in the light of various criticisms passed by other delegations, and, in its final form, it seemed to us unobjectionable, and the whole subject will be open for unprejudiced discussion next year when Governments will have had full opportunity of considering it.

COMMITTEE VI.—Political Questions.

MINORITIES.

88. This question has not been discussed by the Sixth Committee for some years. This year it was referred to the Sixth Committee on the motion of the German Delegation, and the object of the German Government was apparently rather to secure that the minority administration should be the subject of annual review by the Assembly than to bring up concrete controversies for decision. There was some difference of opinion expressed as to the jurisdiction of the Assembly in regard to the execution of the minority treaties, but no one questioned the right of the Assembly to debate the subject of minorities generally. It was agreed that the procedure introduced by the Council in 1929, was an improvement on that which had previously been in force, and, although it was the subject of criticism, no one demanded that it should be revised pending further experience of its application. The view that the existence of the minority treaties and their application were having a beneficial, though indirect, effect upon the treatment of minorities whose rights are not safeguarded by treaties, seemed to meet with general support. The debate was admirable, both for its courageous thoroughness (for the subject strikes at the root of post-war Europe) and its temperate character. Attention was called to the services which the representatives of non-European countries, acting as rapporteurs to the Council on minority questions, had rendered to the cause of a good understanding among the European peoples. As the report presented to the Assembly by the Sixth Committee said, "the main idea brought out by the debates was co-operation between majorities and minorities. Majorities must be just and generous and minorities must be loyal. Governments must constantly endeavour to smooth the way for mutual understanding and confidence and for co-operation between the majority and the minority."

MANDATES.

89. In the debate it was generally agreed that the Mandatory Powers had been materially assisted by the Mandates system in achieving considerable progress in all branches of administration in the territories entrusted to their charge, especially in native policy and the suppression of abuses in connection with the liquor traffic. The Assembly was sufficiently confident of the success of the system to suggest that the experience gained through it might be of great value for the administration of other territories in which conditions were similar. On particular points the Sixth Committee expressed satisfaction at the improvement of the position in Palestine, and noted with approval the undertaking given by the British Government to provide the Mandates Commission with an opportunity of making observations on whatever decisions the British Government might come to in regard to the scheme for closer union in East Africa before such decisions became operative.

REFUGEES.

90. This work has been and indeed still is of considerable humanitarian and economic value. But it is of the essence of the problem that it should be liquidated without avoidable delay. It has hitherto been dominated by the personality of Dr. Nansen, and his lamented death has increased the necessity for providing adequately for the gradual completion of the task. There is in existence a large organisation which, after a period of comparative independence, was for some years placed under the International Labour Organisation and was last year transferred temporarily to the Secretary-General. It is financed partly by a League grant (at present 333,800 gold francs), partly by fees charged for identity documents and partly from private funds. The work of the Sixth Committee was to consider and take decisions on the recommendations of the Inter-Government Advisory Commission as to future arrangements. For various reasons the Organisation as a whole was not found suitable for absorption into the Secretariat of the League. There are two main aspects of the work, that which relates to legal protection, civil rights and the status of refugees, and that which relates to their maintenance, relief and employment. The first will, in future, be part of the duties of the Secretariat. For the second aspect, an International Refugees Office will be created under the direction of the League in accordance with Article 24 of the Covenant. The League will grant towards the expenses of this Office a diminishing subsidy, which for 1931 will be at the same figure as that for 1930 stated above. The Office is to draw up a systematic plan for liquidating the work by the end of 1939. The League has been fortunate in securing the services of M. Max Huber, President of the International Red Cross Committee and former President of the Permanent Court of International Justice, to take charge of the new office.

SLAVERY.

91. The Slavery Convention of 1925 has not produced all the results that were hoped of it. Slavery still exists in certain countries which have not yet adhered to the Convention, and all attempts to obtain the application of the Convention in those countries have, so far, been unsuccessful. The special effort made in pursuance of the Assembly resolution of 1929 to obtain information from Governments as to the slavery which continues to exist had had meagre results. In these circumstances the British Government, which had been responsible for the promotion of the Convention of 1925, brought forward proposals for the creation of new machinery to deal with the subject. They proposed that a Permanent Slavery Organisation should be instituted on the lines of the Permanent Mandates Organisation, to consist of a Standing Committee of independent authorities and a permanent Bureau or Secretariat, to collect material for the Commission to prepare its reports and to attend to the execution of its recommendations.

92. We felt constrained to oppose this suggestion because the results that might be expected from such an Organisation were hardly likely to justify the recurrent cost. After a preliminary debate in the Sixth Committee, in which the Indian Delegation did not find it necessary to take part, the proposal was referred to a Sub-Committee, on which Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan was appointed to serve. Long discussions took place in the Sub-Committee, and he then found a convenient opportunity to explain India's position. In the course of doing so he expressed on behalf of the Government of India full sympathy with the object in view and referred to the recent expeditions in Burma.

93. The original British proposal met with little support, and was replaced by another that the League should convene a meeting of experts chosen in the same way as the Temporary Slavery Commission, which had drafted the Convention of 1925. Sir Zulfiqar Ali Khan felt justified in supporting this proposal, as, although it was doubtful whether such a meeting would be fruitful in its results, its cost would have been small and non-recurrent.

94. The modified British proposal failed to secure a majority, and after various alternatives had been examined the Sub-Committee adopted by a majority a proposal of the Portuguese Delegation, which noted that the information so far furnished by Governments was not sufficient to give an accurate idea of the present situation, postponed consideration of any changes in the existing procedure till next year, and invited the Governments to amplify the information already supplied, not only in regard to the conditions prevailing in their own territories, but also in regard to the present general position on the subject of slavery.

95. This proposal was eventually approved by the majority of the Sixth Committee and by the Assembly, although the British delegate expressed dissatisfaction and stated that the British Government would press for further activity on a later occasion. The course of the discussion certainly indicated that the countries in whose territories or colonies social conditions of a primitive nature still survive, are still very cautious in their attitude towards any movement from outside in the direction of the improvement of those conditions.

96. It only remains for us, in concluding our Report, to express our high sense of the honour and responsibility which devolved upon us as representatives of India at the Assembly of the League of Nations, and our appreciation of the co-operation which we received from our colleagues, Sir D. P. Sarvadhikary, Sir Denys Bray, and Sir J. C. Coyajee, who served as assistant delegates.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF BENGAL, 1931.

[NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1928-29, the area under jute in Bengal, to which this Forecast relates, represents some 85·8 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.]

The Preliminary Forecast deals only with the estimates of area sown and the condition of the crop at the time of publication of the forecast The estimates of area are based on information received through the Collectors from the Revenue staff, also from Panchayets and Agricultural Officers.

Area sown in 1931.—In Bengal, returns for the present season show a total area of 1,650,300 acres, a decrease of about 1,412,000 acres, or 46 per cent. as compared with the figures for 1930.

Character of the season.—Sowing conditions were generally favourable, except for drought in parts of the Presidency Division, and in the Malda district, which tended to restrict sowings in these tracts. Prolonged heavy rain in May exercised definitely unfavourable influence on the crop in the Kishoreganj and Netrakona subdivisions of Mymensingh, and to a less extent in the Sadar subdivision of the same district. Heavy rain is also reported to have affected the crop in portions of the Faridpur district and in some parts of North Bengal.

Present state of the crop.—With the exceptions mentioned above, the present state of the crop is favourable, on the whole.

Stocks.—Large stocks of old jute are reported from most districts.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

APPENDIX I.

Preliminary forecast of the jute crop of Bengal, 1931.

District.	Estimated area under jute		Whether much, little or no jute remains in the district from the crop of 1930.	Date by which the sowing of the crop generally commenced this year, and whether that date was early normal or late.	Remarks by District Officers.
	Last year.	This year.
1	2	3	4	5	6
	Acres.	Acres
24-Parganas ..	60,000	45,000	Much ..	Middle of May. Late	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to propaganda against jute cultivation The weather has not been favourable. The crop has been damaged to the extent of two annas by drought
Nadia ..	56,000	30,000	Much ..	Latter part of May.	The decrease in area is due to slump in jute and to propaganda against jute cultivation. The weather has been fair.
Murshidabad ..	33,000	14,000	Much ..	End of May to middle of June Late	The decrease in area is due to low price and to propaganda for restriction of jute cultivation. The weather was unfavourable at the beginning.
Jessore ..	103,000	46,000	A good quantity	End of April to middle of May. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to abnormally low price and to propaganda for restriction of jute cultivation. The weather has been fair.
Khulna ..	35,000	21,000	Little ..	Beginning of May. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to propaganda for restriction of jute cultivation. The weather was not favourable at sowing time.
Burdwan ..	3,000	2,000	Much ..	End of May ..	Low price of jute is responsible for the decrease in area. The weather has been fair.
Midnapore ..	8,000	4,000	Much ..	End of May. Late.	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute. The weather was not favourable at sowing time.
Hooghly ..	20,000	20,000	Much ..	Third week of May. Late.	The decrease in area is due to unfavourable weather at sowing time and to low price of jute and also to propaganda for restriction of jute cultivation.
Howrah ..	7,000	4,000	Appreciable balance.	Middle of June. Late.	The decrease in area is due to abnormal slump in jute trade.
Rajshahi ..	85,000	68,000	Much ..	Beginning of April. Late.	The decrease in area is due partly to low price of jute, partly to intensive propaganda for restriction of jute cultivation and partly to late rains. The weather was not favourable at sowing time.
Dinajpur ..	73,000	41,000	Much ..	First week of May. Late.	The decrease in area is due to previous stock, to low price of jute and to propaganda work. The weather was not favourable at the beginning owing to drought.
Jalpaiguri ..	42,000	26,000	Much ..	First week of April. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to propaganda for restriction of jute cultivation. There was drought at first but subsequent heavy and constant rainfall rendered the fields unfit for weeding in some places.
Darjeeling ..	4,000	2,000	Little ..	April. Normal	The decrease in area is due to low price. The weather was fair.
Rangpur ..	320,000	180,000	Much ..	March. Normal	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to drought at sowing time followed by constant rainfall and hail-storm. The weather has not been satisfactory for the growth of the crop.
Bogra ..	103,000	60,000	Much ..	February. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to considerable stock of last year's crop.
Pabna ..	155,000	87,000	Good quantity	Middle of March to beginning of May. Late.	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute. The weather has been fairly favourable.
Malda ..	38,000	16,000	Little ..	First week of June. Very late.	The decrease in area is due to propaganda combined with bad weather conditions at the time of sowing. Subsequent drought also affected the germination and growth of the crop. Present condition is unsatisfactory.

Dacca ..	378,000	215,000	Much ..	First week of March A little late	The decrease in area is due to fall in price and to propaganda for restriction of jute cultivation Rains early in May have slightly affected the growth of the crop
Mymensingh ..	749,000	415,000	Large stocks ..	Latter part of March to beginning of April Slightly late.	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to propaganda against jute cultivation. Heavy rains, while the crop was a few inches high water-logged the plants and retarded the progress Water logging has caused damage to the extent of two annas The present condition is fair. The crops are very patchy
Faridpur ..	314,000	144,000	Much ..	Middle of April Late	The decrease in area is due to fall in price of jute The weather was favourable for high land jute at sowing time but unfavourable for low land jute Continuous heavy rains in May retarded the growth of the crop and encouraged the growth of weeds and submerged the low land crop to some extent Appreciable damage has been caused by hailstorm and insect pests
Bakarganj ..	52,000	25,000	Much ..	March Normal	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute The weather at sowing time was favourable but excessive rain in May affected the growth of the crop by water logging Present condition is not very good
Chittagong ..	300	300	None ..	Middle of May Normal	The weather was favourable
Tippera ..	308,000	140,000	Little ..	March Normal	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to propaganda for restriction of jute cultivation There was shortage of rain at sowing time The crop in low lying areas has been slightly damaged by flood Present condition is satisfactory
Noakhali ..	64,000	28,000	Much ..	Normal ..	The decrease in area is due to low price of jute and to propaganda for restriction of jute cultivation Some damage has been done by flood owing to early heavy rain. Present condition of the crop is good

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF BIHAR AND ORISSA, 1931.

[NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1928-29, the area under jute to which Bihar and Orissa Forecast relates, represents about 7·9 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.]

The present forecast deals only with the estimated area sown. It gives also a general survey of prospects, but makes no reference to the probable outturn either in percentage figures or in bales.

2. Acreage.—I estimate the area sown during the current and four preceding years in round numbers as follows:—

Year.	Acreage.
1927	... 241,000
1928	... 247,000
1929	... 238,000
1930	... 238,000
1931	... 148,800

3. Weather conditions.—In March light rain fell in the jute districts. The fall was above the normal in Champaran, Darbhanga, Bhagalpur, the Santal Parganas, Balasore, normal in Purnea, and below the normal in the remaining two jute districts. In April and May light rain fell in all the jute districts. The fall was below the normal everywhere. In June rain fell in all the jute districts; the fall was light everywhere except Cuttack, where it was moderate. The weather conditions are reported to be not favourable in the important districts of Purnea and Cuttack, and also in Darbhanga, Bhagalpur and the Santal Parganas, owing to insufficiency of rain. Sowings are still going on in Cuttack.

4. District returns.—Last year's area under jute was finally estimated at 238,000 acres. The total area under jute this year is estimated by District Officers in round number at 127,500 acres. This area appears, however, to be an underestimate, and in my opinion this year's figure is likely to be not less than 148,800 acres. The decrease in comparison with last year is due to the decrease in the price of jute and insufficiency of rain at the time of sowings.

5. Condition and prospects.—The condition of the crop is fair.

6. General.—The quantity of jute which remains in the jute districts from the crops of 1930 is reported to be small, except in Champaran, Bhagalpur and in parts of Purnea, where the stock is reported to be considerable.

The statement below compares the estimated area under jute in this province this year with the preliminary and final figures of last year:—

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, ASSAM.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF ASSAM, 1931.

[NOTE.—On the average of the five years ending 1928-29, the area under jute in Assam represents 5·1 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.]

Character of the season.—The weather generally has been unfavourable for the cultivation and growth of the crop. Heavy rainfall in the months of April and May was injurious to the young plants. Slight damage has also been done by hailstorms in the Goalpara district and by insects in Nowgong district. The present condition of the crop is generally not good, and the prospects are worse than last year in all districts except Nowgong, Garo Hills and Sibsagar, where the outturn is expected to be as good or a little better than last year. These three districts, however, represent about 25 per cent. of the total area in the province.

2. Area sown.—The total area under jute, as estimated by the Deputy Commissioners, is 100,500 acres against 230,300 acres of last year. There is a decrease in area in all districts, except Cachar, where the area remains the same as in last year.

3. Stock.—According to the reports of the Deputy Commissioners, little jute remains in stock from last year's crop except in Nowgong.

Preliminary forecast of the jute crop of Assam, 1931.

District	Area under jute.			Difference between the figures now estimated for 1931 and the final of 1930		Whether much, little or no jute remains in the district from the crop of 1930.	Date by which the sowing of the crop generally commenced this year and whether that date was early, normal or late.	Remarks by the Deputy Commissioners.
	Normal.	Final of 1930	Now estimated for 1931.	Increase.	Decrease.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	Acres.	Acres.	Acres.	Acres.	Acres.
Cachar ..	300	200	200	..	..	None ..	First week of April. Normal.	The weather at sowing time was not favourable but improved subsequently. The growth of the crop has since been retarded by heavy rainfall. The present condition of the crop is not good.
Sylhet ..	20,000	19,800	11,900	..	7,900	Little ..	Ditto ..	The decrease in area is due to the very dull condition of the jute market The weather at sowing time was not favourable Heavy and continuous rains in April and May also considerably damaged the tender plants. The present condition of the crop is not very good.
Goalpara ..	60,000	101,600	35,200	..	66,400	A small quantity remains.	First part of April. Normal.	The cause of the large decrease in area is due partly to unfavourable weather and partly to the very low price of jute last year The weather was rainy at sowing time and continued so since. The weather is still unfavourable. Also some damage has been done to the crop by hailstorms and excessive rains. The present prospect of the crop is not good.
Kamrup ..	15,000	27,100	13,300	..	13,800	Some jute remains	Beginning of April. Normal.	Excessive rain during the months of March and April and the unusually low price of jute are responsible for the decrease in area. The weather continues to be unfavourable since sowing time—affecting the growth of the crop adversely The present condition of the crop is not generally good.
Darrang ..	12,600	18,600	13,700	..	4,900	Little ..	Ditto ..	The decrease in area is due partly to low price of jute last year and partly to unfavourable weather. The weather was unfavourable at sowing time owing to heavy rain but it has improved now The present condition of the crop is fair.
Nowgong ..	40,000	56,600	20,400	..	36,200	Much jute remains.	First week of March. Early.	Extremely low price of jute is responsible for the large decrease in area. The weather has been generally favourable for the cultivation and growth of the crop. The present condition of the crop is generally good. Some damage to the crop by insects has been reported from places.
Sibsagar ..	300	400	300	..	100	None ..	Middle of April. Normal.	Unfavourable weather conditions account for the decrease in area. The weather was rainy at the sowing time which retarded the growth of the crop but became more favourable afterwards.
Lakhimpur ..	200	1,100	900	..	200	Some jute remains.	First week of April. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to the fact that many people have given up jute cultivation owing to the exceptional fall in price. The weather was favourable in the beginning but has since become too wet. The present condition of the crop is not promising.
Garo Hills (plains)	3,300	4,900	4,600	..	300	None ..	Middle of March. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to dullness of jute market. The weather till now is favourable and the condition of the crop is good.
Total ..	151,700	230,300	100,500	..	129,800

III. State of standing crops.—The condition of standing crops was reported to be generally satisfactory.

IV. Prospects and probable outturn.—The prospects of deep water paddy, sugarcane and other standing crops were reported to be generally promising.

V. Damage to standing crops.—Some damage to standing autumn crops by heavy rain was reported from parts of East Bengal.

VI. Condition of agricultural stock.—The condition of live-stock was, on the whole, fair. Sporadic cases of cattle-disease, however, were reported from nine districts of the Province.

The Annual Report of the Bengal Smoke Nuisances Commission for the year 1930.

The report records another year's steady progress in the removal of smoke from the air of Calcutta and its immediate environs. During the year a 27 per cent. reduction of daily black smoke was brought about by the efforts of the Commission. The average emission from each factory chimney during the previous year was the equivalent of ·3 minutes of dense black smoke per hour; during the year under report it was reduced to ·18 minutes, which is by far the lowest recorded figure so far. The progress recorded during the year was all the more satisfactory in view of the fact that it was achieved during a period of abnormal trade depression, when manufacturers were not unnaturally hesitant in undertaking new commitments. The Governor in Council notes with pleasure the successful action of the Commission in aiding rice-husking mills and brickfields. The progress achieved in each of these cases during the year under report has been particularly noteworthy and reflects great credit on the Commission and its technical staff.

2. Unfortunately, owing to financial stringency, Government have not been able to give effect to several recommendations made to them by the Commission, particularly with respect to the appointment of smoke observers and to the provision of further finance. The proposals made by the Commission have been sympathetically received, but their fulfilment, like that of many other proposals, must await better times.

3. The Governor in Council, in thanking the Commission for its useful work, desires particularly to mention the work of Mr. John Robson, who has been Chief Inspector and Secretary of the Commission for twenty-five years, and who is due to retire this year. The measure of his service to the public of Calcutta may be judged from the remark in the report under review, namely, that while in 1906 the daily emission of black smoke was about 2,00,000 minutes, at the end of 1930 it had dropped to under 2,000 minutes. Mr. Robson's services have been retained several years beyond the normal time limit of retirement for Government servants, but Government have now decided to release him at his own request. In losing him the local Government and the public served by the Bengal Smoke Nuisances Commission lose an expert and enthusiastic officer, and the Governor in Council wishes to place on record his high appreciation of his long and valuable service.

Order—Ordered that the resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Ordered also that a copy of the resolution be forwarded to the Chief Inspector and Secretary, Bengal Smoke Nuisances Commission, for information.

By order of the Governor in Council,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Resolution on the Report on the Police Administration in the town of Calcutta and its suburbs for the year 1930.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

Police Department.

CALCUTTA, THE 18TH JULY, 1931.

RESOLUTION—No. 3144 Pl.

Read—

The Report on the Police Administration in the town of Calcutta and its suburbs for the year 1930.

The office of the Commissioner of Police was held throughout the year by Sir Charles Tegart, Kt., C.S.I., C.I.E., M.V.O.

2. Strength.—The sanctioned strength of the Calcutta Police at the close of the year was 5,747, a decrease of 3 on the previous year. The number of resignations during the year was 51 as against 46 in the preceding year. There was, however, a decrease of 13 in the number of vacancies at the end of the year, and the Governor in Council notes with satisfaction that the increased rate of pay in the rank of constable has given a stimulus to recruitment and enabled a better type of recruit to be secured. His Excellency in Council is pleased to see that the improvement in the health of the force has been maintained in spite of the great strain placed on all ranks by the civil disobedience movement.

3. Housing.—His Excellency in Council is alive to the need of improved police accommodation in the suburban areas, and regrets that it has not yet been possible to take this work in hand owing to severe financial stringency.

4. Discipline.—His Excellency in Council has noticed with pleasure the large decrease in the number of judicial punishments inflicted on members of the force and also in the number of dismissals and degradations.

5. Crime Statistics.—There was a substantial fall in the total number of cognizable cases reported to the police, but a great increase in the number of rioting cases, a fact which is to be ascribed to the civil disobedience movement. The same increase is found in the figures of other crimes of violence which, as the Commissioner of Police points out, have a tendency to be more prevalent during periods of excitement or civil commotion. As against this, it is satisfactory to note that the number of true cases of burglary, theft and receiving stolen property showed a marked decrease. The effects of the civil disobedience campaign are reflected in an increase of 50 per cent. over the previous year in the number of persons detained in police lock-ups, 21,085 as against 14,239.

The Detective Department was as usual engaged in tracing out various fraudulent activities and attained very successful results. The activities of a number of swindling agencies under the guise of banks have already been brought to the notice of His Excellency in Council and the matter is engaging his attention.

6. Revolutionary crime, seditious speeches and writings.—The terrorist party made itself felt by a series of political outrages which began in August with the attempt to assassinate the Commissioner of Police. Fortunately this was unsuccessful and His Excellency in Council takes this opportunity to congratulate Sir Charles Tegart on his providential escape. Shortly after this incident, bombs were thrown on the Jorabagan Court building and the roof of the Eden Garden outpost, causing injuries to a number of people, one of whom died. This was followed in December by the cowardly murder of Lt.-Col. Simpson, the Inspector-General of Prisons, in his office in Writers' Buildings.

As a result of investigations in connection with the first three outrages, a terrorist conspiracy was unearthed and 13 Bengalis were sent up for trial, 8 of them being convicted and sentenced to terms ranging from transportation for 20 years to 10 years' rigorous imprisonment.

Throughout the civil disobedience movement, the Congress had the vigorous support of the Indian Press, practically the whole of which devoted itself to the spread of an anti-Government propaganda as false as it was sensational. The number of prosecutions for seditious speeches was inevitably high, while two persons were convicted of attempts to tamper with the loyalty of the police. Prosecutions were instituted in a number of cases under sections 124A and 153A of the Indian Penal Code, and there was a large increase in the number of publications which it was found necessary to proscribe under section 99A of the Criminal Procedure Code. When, with the promulgation of the Indian Press Ordinance, it became possible to demand security from the keepers of printing presses and printers and publishers of newspapers, the Congress resorted to the publication of unauthorised newssheets, bulletins, leaflets and pamphlets which were met by the institution of numerous prosecutions under the Press and Registration of Books Act, the Police Act, the Picketing Ordinance and various sections of the Indian Penal Code.

7. Public Order.—The situation resulting from the civil disobedience movement and the activities of the terrorists subjected the Calcutta Police to the heaviest strain the force has yet had to bear. Street rioting—of which the most serious was that of 15th April in Bhowanipore when tramcars were set on fire, officers and men of the Fire Brigade injured and fire engines damaged—hartals, unlawful processions and meetings, and picketing combined with intimidation and violence, entailed long and harassing hours of duty and were a severe test of the fortitude of the force. Insidious attempts were made to tamper with the loyalty of the Indian ranks, but this did not deflect them from their duty, and all ranks faced the situation and performed the difficult task of maintaining order with an alacrity and cheerfulness, and a patience and restraint which do the highest credit to the force. His Excellency in Council takes this opportunity to place on record his high appreciation of the loyalty, courage and devotion to duty of all ranks during one of the most trying periods in the history of the Calcutta Police.

8. Labour.—There was a great deal of labour unrest during the year, but His Excellency in Council is glad to be able to record that there was only one occasion on which the situation became serious, when, on April 1st, the resentment felt by the carters and transport workers at the enforcement of certain rules made under the Bengal Cruelty to Animals Act (Bengal Act I of 1920) culminated in fierce rioting on Howrah bridge and the neighbourhood, in the course of which the police had several times to fire. The situation was competently and resolutely handled and brought under control without delay. There were eight industrial strikes during the year.

9. Traffic.—His Excellency in Council is pleased to notice the many improvements effected in the working of the Motor Vehicles Department, particularly the arrangements made to expedite the issue of licences and registration certificates, the introduction of the English system of the Public Service Vehicles licence, and the measures taken to deal with the "horn nuisance." He trusts that it may be found possible at an early date to effect further improvements in connection with other nuisances which still persist. His Excellency in Council is concerned to see that over two thousand cases under the Motor Vehicles Act were pending at the close of the year, and trusts that every effort will be made to deal with these cases as expeditiously as possible. He regrets that the proposal to form a "Traffic Bureau" cannot be proceeded with at present owing to the financial situation. In the meantime the question of amending the Motor Vehicles Act to provide for the composition of offences is engaging the attention of the Government of India.

10 Commendation of officers.—His Excellency in Council is gratified to read the tributes paid by Sir Charles Tegart to his Deputy Commissioners, Assistant Commissioners and other subordinate officers. In congratulating the Commissioner of Police on the efficiency and fine sense of duty displayed by the whole force during a year of unprecedented strain, he wishes to place on record his deep appreciation of the signal services that the officers and men of the Calcutta Police rendered to the State in combating a movement whose aim was the subversion of law and order and good government. He would add that the implicit confidence in the ability and courage of Sir Charles Tegart himself which was felt not only by his subordinates but by the citizens of Calcutta generally contributed in no small degree to the success with which the stormy days of 1930 were weathered. In this commendation the Governor in Council would wish to include the members of the Special Constabulary who, though actually mobilised on only one occasion, constituted a very valuable potential support to the police in times of emergency.

Order—Ordered that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, the Chief Presidency Magistrate, Calcutta, and the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, for information.

Ordered also that a copy of the report be submitted to the Government of India in the Home Department.

Ordered also that the resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

CALCUTTA, THE 29TH JULY 1931.

RESOLUTION—No. 6826A.

The Governor in Council regrets to have to record another senseless crime through which Mr. R. R. Garlick, I.C.S., District Judge of the 24-Parganas, lost his life at the hand of an assassin. Mr. Garlick was shot while at work in his Court at Alipore on the 27th of July.

Mr. Garlick, who was a little over 55 years of age, came out to India in 1900, and with the exception of two years as Subdivisional Officer of Samastipur in Bihar, spent the whole of his service in Bengal. He elected the Judicial branch of the Service and was employed on judicial work in various districts practically continuously from 1909 until the day of his death. During the last twelve months he was selected to preside over several Special Tribunals convened to try cases in which the revolutionaries were concerned, and it is undoubtedly on this account that he was marked down for assassination.

A man of retiring nature, he devoted himself to his work with remarkable industry and discharged his judicial duties with great ability and without fear or favour. By his death the Government of Bengal have lost a zealous and an upright Judge and a devoted public servant. To his widow and his children who survive him the Governor in Council desires to extend a sincere expression of his sympathy.

NOTIFICATION.

H. (G.).

Simla, the 16th July 1931.

No 1276.—In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 213 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1923 (XXI of 1923) the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules to regulate fire extinguishing appliances on pilgrim ships, the same having been previously published as required by sub-section (3) of the said section, namely:—

Rules.

1. (1) Title and extent of application.—These rules may be called the Fire Extinguishing Appliances (Pilgrim Ships) Rules, 1931.

(2) They apply to pilgrim ships, and shall come into force on the 1st day of September 1931, from which date rules 11 to 15 of the rules published with the notification of the Government of India in the Home Department No. 1902 (Sanitary), dated the 14th October 1910, shall be cancelled.

Provided that these rules shall not apply, and rules 11 to 15 of the rules published with the said notification shall continue to apply to pilgrim ships with regard to which a certificate of survey was granted before the 1st day of September 1931, under section 136 or section 144 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1923, while such certificate is in force

2 Definition.—In these rules "approved" means approved by the Governor General in Council.

3. (1) Spaces occupied by passengers and crew.—On every ship of more than 4,000 tons gross tonnage, at least three, and on every other ship at least two, steam or equivalent pumps shall be available for the spaces occupied by passengers and crew: provided that more than two pumps shall not be required on ships whose keels were laid before the 1st September 1931. Each such pump shall be capable of providing a full supply of water, in accordance with the requirements specified in sub-rule (1) of rule 6, to one or more ranges of water service pipes. The service pipes shall be of metal, with branches so arranged that the fire hoses may be coupled thereto, and two powerful jets of water may be rapidly and simultaneously brought to bear, by means of single lengths of hose from each branch, upon any part of each deck space occupied by passengers or crew, when the watertight and fire doors are closed. Where the water service is on an exposed deck, the branches necessary to comply with the foregoing requirements shall, in the case of vessels whose keels are laid after the 1st September 1931, be fitted on both sides of the deck.

Provided that in the case of vessels whose keels were laid before the 1st September 1931, the main engine sanitary pump shall be allowed to count as one of the pumps required to be available if it is so fitted as to be capable of serving the purpose of such pump.

(2) Every ship shall carry an efficient portable hand pump with suction and hose complete.

(3) Portable chemical fire extinguishers of an approved pattern shall be carried in every compartment wherein passengers and crew are accommodated. There shall be two extinguishers in each such compartment, and when passengers are carried in enclosed spaces above the upper deck, there shall be at least one extinguisher on each side of such spaces at intervals of not more than 60 feet.

4. Cargo spaces.—On every ship arrangements shall be made whereby two powerful jets of water may be rapidly and simultaneously directed into any cargo compartment, and, save in the case of a ship of less than 1,000 tons gross tonnage, satisfactory means shall also be provided whereby steam or other gas incapable of supporting combustion may be conveyed to each such compartment.

5. (1) Machinery and bunker spaces.—Arrangements shall be made in ships which use coal as fuel whereby two powerful jets of water can be rapidly and simultaneously directed into any part of the coal bunker spaces, boiler rooms and machinery spaces.

(2) In ships in which the main boilers are oil fired the following additional arrangements shall be made:—

(a) The fire hoses in the machinery spaces shall be provided with additional conductors suitable for spraying water on oil without undue disturbance of the surface.

(b) In each firing space there shall be placed a receptacle containing 10 cubic feet of sand, sawdust impregnated with soda, or other approved dry material; and scoops for distributing the same.

(c) In each boiler room, and in each of the machinery spaces in which a part of the oil fuel installation is situated, there shall be provided two approved portable chemical extinguishers of a type discharging froth or other approved medium suitable for quenching oil fires.

(d) Means shall be provided whereby froth may be rapidly discharged and distributed over the whole of the lower parts of any boiler room, or of any machinery space in which oil fuel units or settling tanks may be situated. The quantity of froth which can be discharged should be amply sufficient to cover up to a depth of 6 inches the whole area of the plating formed in any one compartment by the inner bottom plating, or by the shell plating of the vessel if there is no double bottom tank. If the engine and boiler rooms are not entirely separate, and fuel oil can drain from the boiler room bilges into the engine room, the combined engine and boiler rooms shall be treated as one compartment. Provided that if other effective means are available for combating fire and the apparatus can be controlled from outside the compartment in which fire may occur, the Governor General in Council may exempt from the requirements of this clause ships whose keels were laid before the 1st September 1931 on which it would not be reasonable to require the fitting of large froth installations.

(e) There shall further be provided one extinguisher of at least 30 gallons capacity in ships having one boiler room, and two such extinguishers in ships with more than one boiler room. These extinguishers shall be provided with hoses on reels suitable for reaching any part of the boiler rooms and spaces containing oil fuel pumping units. Provided that the Governor General in Council may permit the fitting of any other equally efficient apparatus in place of the 30 gallons extinguisher.

(f) All containers and valves by which they are operated shall be easily accessible and so placed that they will not readily be cut off from use in case of fire.

6. (1) Pumps.—In all ships each of the steam or equivalent pumps shall be capable of supplying simultaneously two powerful jets of water for use in any part of the vessel. The pumps shall be worked by steam or by some other equally efficient motive power, and shall always be available for immediate use at all reasonable times when the vessel is in commission.

(2) All steam or equivalent pumps shall be provided with effective escape valves suitably adjusted and so placed as to prevent excessive pressure in any part of the water service system.

7. Water service pipes.—The main water service pipes shall be made of wrought material, and, if of iron or steel, shall in the case of vessels whose keels were laid after the 1st September 1931, be galvanised. They shall be sufficiently large in diameter for the adequate supply of water to the fire hoses which shall be secured to them for simultaneous operation. The branches shall be so placed that the fire hoses may be conveniently coupled to them, and cocks or valves shall be fitted where required to admit of any hose being removed, if desired, while the pumps are at work.

8. (1) Fire Hoses. The fire hoses shall be of leather, seamless hemp, flax canvas of first-class quality, or other approved material.

They shall be provided with suitable metal unions and conductors, and with gooseneck connections where necessary.

(2) A sufficient number of fire hoses with attachments and conductors shall be suitably distributed about different decks in the ship so as to be readily available for rapid use in any space occupied by passengers or crew, and not less than three hoses and attachments shall be provided in any vessel.

(3) The fire hoses and the conductors, and other apparatus referred to in sub-rules (1) and (2), together with coupling wrenches if required, shall be kept ready for use in conspicuous positions near the water service hydrants or connections. They shall be used only for the purposes of extinguishing fires or for testing the fire extinguishing apparatus at fire drills and surveys, and not for washing decks.

9. Arrangements for injecting steam or other gas into Cargo Spaces and Boiler Rooms.—Where provision is made for the injection of steam or other gas into the cargo spaces and boiler rooms for fire extinguishing purposes the necessary pipes for conveying the steam or gas to holds or other compartments shall be provided with controlling valves or cocks readily accessible from the deck and so marked as to indicate clearly the compartments to which the pipes are respectively led. Suitable provision shall be made for locking these valves or cocks so as to prevent inadvertent admission of the steam or gas to any compartment. If any pipe is led to a space to which passengers have access, it shall be furnished with an additional stop valve or cock also capable of being locked. Provided that the Governor General in Council may permit the substitution of any other equally efficient safety device giving the requisite security from danger.

10. (1) Fluid Fire Extinguishers.—A sufficient number of approved portable fluid fire extinguishers discharging water shall be provided in accordance with the requirements of rules 3 and 5. For ordinary purposes not specifically referred to in these rules, the capacity of portable extinguishers shall be not more than three imperial gallons, and not less than two imperial gallons, provided the Governor General in Council may, in his discretion, permit the use of an extinguisher of less than two gallons capacity in special circumstances.

(2) An approved type of portable extinguisher discharging a medium other than water may in the case of not more than 20 per cent. of the total number of extinguishers required to be carried be substituted for the ordinary water-discharging extinguisher.

(3) The portable hand fluid fire extinguishers (apart from those supplied in boiler rooms, etc., specially for use in connection with oil fuel) shall not be of more than two types in any one ship.

(4) All extinguishers, whether portable or otherwise, shall be placed in positions where they are readily accessible.

11. Smoke Helmets and Safety Lamps.—At least two smoke helmets and two safety lamps of approved types shall be included in the fire extinguishing equipment of every vessel and the helmets shall be stowed separately. The members of the crew shall be practised regularly in their use.

12. Emergency Appliances.—The necessary emergency fire appliances such as knives, axes, and crowbars shall be kept in a place readily accessible at all times from different parts of the ship.

13. Fire Drill.—Fire drill shall be observed at least once a week on board all vessels and during such drill all fire appliances shall be put into use and the fact entered in the Log Book. The great utility of woollen or asbestos blankets for smothering small fires shall always be impressed on all persons taking part in a fire drill.

14. (1) Custody of fire apparatus and fire patrol.—The fire apparatus shall be placed by the master under the special charge of one of the principal officers of the ship and of the ship's carpenter, who shall both be held responsible that the apparatus is kept in a state fit for immediate use. As soon as possible after leaving port, the officers and crew shall be divided into parties and assigned to stations in case of fire.

(2) A continuous patrol system shall be organised so that any outbreak of fire may be promptly detected.

15. (1) Stowage of cargo and disposal of inflammables.—The cargo of every ship shall, before she leaves port, be properly stowed away, and the decks shall be cleared of any loose straw, hay and other inflammable material. Any goods which are dangerous by reason of their inflammability or liability to explosion shall be stowed, subject to the provisions of any law or rules in force, in such manner as to safeguard the ship from danger of fire or explosion. The tanks of motor cars carried on the ship shall be drained before loading.

(2) Before a ship leaves port, every passenger shall deliver up any lucifer matches, gun-powder or other inflammable article in his possession.

16. Use of naked lights and spirits.—Naked lights shall not be used in the holds or store rooms or between decks, except under trustworthy superintendence. No person shall read in bed with a naked light. Casks or drums containing spirit shall not be opened in the hold but shall be hoisted on deck for the purpose.

17. Relaxation of rules.—In the case of a small vessel under 200 feet in length when it is shown to be unreasonable to require full compliance with any of the provisions of these rules, such relaxation shall be granted as the Governor General in Council may, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, direct.

18. Penalty.—Whoever does any act in contravention of any of the provisions of these rules shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

CALCUTTA, THE 29TH JULY 1931.

RESOLUTION—No. 1732P.H.

Minister-in-charge: The Hon'ble Mr. Bijoy Prasad Singh Roy.

Section 251 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1923 (Bengal Act III of 1923), provides that the Calcutta Corporation shall provide a safe and sufficient outfall, in or without Calcutta, for the proper discharge of the storm-water and sewage of Calcutta in such manner as not to cause any nuisance whether by flooding any part of Calcutta or of the country surrounding the outfall or in any other way. The plans of such outfall and the method of disposing its sewage shall be subject to the sanction of the Local Government, who may from time to time direct such alterations to be made as they may consider necessary.

The section further provides that if the outfall deteriorates by the decay of existing river channels or otherwise, the Local Government may require such order to be taken and such additions or alterations to be made to or in the outfall work at the charge of the municipal fund as they may consider necessary to ensure the safe and sufficient outfall.

The Calcutta Corporation have submitted to Government proposals for the construction of a new outfall in the river Kulti at an estimated cost of Rs. 34,00,000. With a view to the discharge of their responsibilities under section 251 of the Calcutta Municipal Act the Government of Bengal consider it desirable that they should obtain the advice of an expert committee under an independent Chairman on the suitability of these proposals. The Calcutta Corporation were invited to depute their engineers as members of this committee, but they expressed their unwillingness to allow them to serve as members of the committee unless one of their administrative officers was placed on it, and suggested that if Government could not agree to their proposal then the next best course would be for the Corporation officers to appear as witnesses and place all materials before the committee. The Government of Bengal have carefully considered the alternative suggestions, and are of opinion that the advice which they require at the present stage for the discharge of their responsibility under section 251 of the Calcutta Municipal Act is that of a committee of experts. They have therefore decided to constitute a committee composed of the following persons:—

Chairman.

The Commissioner of the Presidency Division.

Members.

Rai Shailendra Nath Banerjea Bahadur, Chief Engineer, Irrigation Department.

Mr. J. A. Stewart, M.I.C.E., Acting Chief Engineer, Calcutta Improvement Trust.

Mr. F. C. Griffin, M.INST. C.E., M.I.E. (Ind.), Chief Engineer, Public Health Department.

The terms of reference to the committee will be to examine the proposals of the Calcutta Corporation for a drainage outfall, as distinct from the scheme for the revision of the internal drainage (particulars of which will be available for their information so far as necessary for their purpose in advising on the outfall), and to report to Government—

(1) what outfall in their opinion is the best solution of the problem;

(2) whether the sewage requires any form of treatment for disposal at such outfall; and

(3) whether they consider it desirable that their report should be submitted to some external expert or experts for opinion on either or both of these points.

Ordered that the resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and copies thereof forwarded to the Chief Executive Officer, Calcutta Corporation, and the Chairman and the members of the committee

By order of the Govt. of Bengal
(Ministry of Local Self-Govt.),

C. W. GURNER,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.
